BASIC TRAINING

DEVELOPING YOUR HEROES

You will form a fellowship of six heroes as you quest through Middle-earth, and though you cannot change their roles in the story, you have a great deal of flexibility in determining their strengths and abilities in combat.

GAINING EXPERIENCE

There are two ways to gain experience points in Lord of the Rings: The Third Age:

COMBAT

Characters who do not participate in the battle (or who are dead at the end) get only half the experience of other characters, so make sure everyone gets in at least one action! Besides, you're battling Sauron here... you're supposed to do some damage!

QUESTS

Each chapter has between two and 10 separate quest objectives. For most, your lead character gains an experience bonus upon completion. Since only the party leader gets the experience, you might want your weakest—or strongest—character in the lead, depending on your preferred strategy.

CHARACTER STATS

When you gain enough experience to go up a level, you'll usually earn two stat points to spend on any of the character's stats. Each character's stats increase automatically, as well, so although you can help direct their growth, many of the decisions are made automatically. Hadhod's Constitution, for example, will always grow whether you spent points on it or not. The five stats are:

STRENGTH

Strength determines how much damage you deal on a successful weapon hit. It also has a slight influence on your hit points and your accuracy with both types of weapons.

DEXTERITY

Dexterity is the largest factor in determining your odds of successfully hitting a foe with a melee or ranged weapon, and also slightly improves the damage you deal with ranged weapons. Additionally, it improves your chances of dodging enemy attacks.

SPEED

Speed improves your character's Initiative, allowing him or her to act more often. It also improves the odds of dodging a melee attack. Trust us, it's a very good thing.

CONSTITUTION

Constitution is the primary factor in determining your character's Hit Points. It also significantly increases Spirit Defense, and is worth a few Ability Points, as well.

SPIRIT

Spirit boosts the efficacy of your Spirit Skills by a huge margin. It's worth a bunch of Action Points and even a few Hit Points, and makes a significant difference in your ability to resist enemies' Spirit Skills.

LEARNING NEW SKILLS

Each character has three skill trees, usually representing Weapon Skills, Spirit Skills, and Passive Skills. Each character also learns Perfect Mode Skills (which are the same for every character), and can unlock up to three other skill trees by equipping special Elfstones.

Most skills can only be gained by using skills higher (i.e., weaker) on the skill tree. So if you use your Weapon Skills more than your Spirit Skills, your character will end up with a wide variety of Weapon Skills and relatively few Spirit Skills. Each time you use a skill, you gain one Skill Point for that skill tree; the point is applied toward learning whatever skill you've selected in the Skills menu. Passive Skills and Perfect Mode Skills are the exceptions; instead of gaining SP by using these in combat, you gain one SP for their skill trees every time you gain a level. Typically, you will learn a new skill in these trees every five levels.

A few tips for learning skills:

- Use your skills at every possible opportunity! It almost never makes sense to just attack when you can use an offensive skill and gain a point for that skill tree.

- Every time you learn a new skill, check your skill tree and select the next skill you want to learn. If you don't choose one, the game will select one for you. You should always make the decision yourself, because the game will usually choose a skill on the same level or a weaker level of the tree, and the better skills tend to be at the bottom. (You can unlock these higher quality skills only by learning a skill on the level above it.)

- Skills that deal damage or heal wounds are always useful, but you often have to force yourself to use other kinds of skills. To gain improved skills in Craft Item, Leadership, or certain characters' Spirit Skills, simply go up against a pack of easy enemies, kill all but one, and use the skills over and over again until you run out

COMBAT

As you might expect, combat will be a major aspect to your sojourn through Middle Earth. The forces of evil (or good, if you're playing in Evil Mode) are assembled in your path, but the following primer should get you up to speed with the finer points of foe killing...

ENEMY ENCOUNTERS

There are three types of encounters in Lord of the Rings: The Third Age:

FIXED ENCOUNTERS

The most common are fixed encounters, which occur at specific places in your journey. A blue sphere will appear in the corner of the screen when you approach one of these encounters, and it will grow more distinct as you get closer. Since you can always see these battles coming, you have plenty of time to heal wounded characters. You cannot retreat from fixed encounters, but once you clear a battle, it will not occur again.

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

At certain areas in the game, the red Eye of Sauron will appear on your screen. As you move, the eye gets brighter; when it's at its zenith, a random encounter will occur. These are usually with the same enemies you battle regularly in fixed encounters, but in some areas you may run into wandering Nazgul. If you're hoping to avoid random encounters, you can sometimes "reset" the eye by ducking through a door into a different area.

CHEST ENCOUNTERS

Some treasure chests are guarded by foes who will strike when you try to open the chest. These are like fixed encounters, but there is no blue sphere to warn you!

THE BATTLE QUEUE

The enemies you encounter in Lord of the Rings: The Third Age may be difficult, but the battle queue always gives your party an advantage. By seeing the order in which each character acts in combat, you can plan a long-term strategy that will lead to victory with a minimum amount of wasted effort.

- When choosing your targets, try to focus your attacks on an enemy whose turn is coming up. Don't always pick the first target; instead pick the first one you can kill. If you're fighting Orcs that take two characters' worth of damage to kill, and the queue has characters acting in Berethor-Orc 1-Idrial-Orc 2 order, there is no point attacking Orc 1, since you won't be able to kill him before he has his turn, and that guarantees Orc 2 will be alive to attack you as well. But if both of your characters attack Orc 2, he will die before his turn and you will have both killed a foe and prevented an attack.

- Before you press the button to confirm a choice of skills, look to the battle queue to see how it will affect your character's future turns. For example, it is usually better to use skills than normal attacks, since using skills helps you earn future skills. But if an enemy is at the brink of death, using a quick normal attack might allow you to kill him and then act again before the next enemy's turn. By watching the battle queue as you scroll through your options, you'll see when this is the case.

SWITCHING CHARACTERS

Your battle lineup is limited to three characters (plus a fourth guest character at times), but you can switch between characters in combat by pressing the left trigger button. Switching characters costs no AP and does not affect that battle queue, so there is no penalty. In fact, there are many advantages to switching often.

EXPERIENCE

Since characters who don't contribute to combat gain only half the standard experience, it is a good idea to switch in every character for at least one move.

PINCH HITTING

When an enemy who is on the brink of death has a turn coming up, you could hope that Berethor can make the kill, or you can switch him out for characters like Elegost or Idrial, who have attacks that never miss.

ACCESSIBILITY

Often, the best place for a valuable character is in the back. If Idrial is in combat, for example, you can use her healing abilities only when her turn comes around. But if she's in the back row, you can use her abilities by switching to her on anyone's turn.

PROTECTION

Lightly armored characters like Morwen can do a lot of damage, but can be slain easily if enemies focus their attacks on them. By starting difficult fights with your toughest characters, you can safely even the odds by killing one or two foes in the first few turns, then switch them out for fresh back-row characters.

HARK!

The only disadvantage is that effects that "buff" party members, like Berethor's Leadership skills, will only affect the characters in the front row. If they switch out, the effect will not apply to the replacement unless you cast it again. The character who left the battle will retain the enhancement, however, should you tag him or her back in.

SKILL TYPES

Most characters are capable of using both weapon attacks and Spirit Powers. Although both can damage foes, they have very different properties. For one, weapon attacks hit or miss depending on your Dexterity, and the amount of damage they do is based on your Strength and your opponent's Armor value. Spirit attacks, on the other hand, always hit. This makes them ideal against difficult-to-hit enemies, but they usually do less damage. The exact damage they inflict is determined by your Spirit score and your target's Spirit Defense.

Some enemies have specific vulnerabilities and resistances to various skill types, so your attacks are even more effective if you match the right attack type with the right enemy. You can see an enemy's vulnerabilities by using Elegost's Examine command or checking the Enemies section in the back of this book.

WEAPON SUBTYPES

Slashing—The swords used by Berethor and Idrial and the axes used by Hadhod and Morwen are all slashing weapons. As a general rule, lightly armored foes are vulnerable to slashing attacks.

Piercing—Elegost's arrows and Eaden's spears are piercing weapons. There are many exceptions, but unusually large enemies tend to be weak to well-placed piercing strikes.

Blunt—Hadhod's warhammers are the only blunt weapons available to your party. Blunt weapons are typically effective against heavily armored foes, so have Hadhod switch to hammers when such enemies abound.

SPIRIT SUBTYPES

Air—Air-type attacks are very rare. The only one your party will typically be able to use is the Spirit of Gwaihir Perfect-mode skill.

Earth—Hadhod has many Earth-type spirit powers you can exploit if you focus on developing his spiritual side.

Fire—Hadhod is also your primary source of Fire-type skills. He begins the game with Flaming Fury, so your party will always have this skill at your disposal.

Water—Idrial is a specialist in Water magic. As the character that is typically your strongest Spirit user, she is a great asset against foes with a weakness to Water.

Light—Light attacks are rare, but the Elfstone of Pure Light will allow any character to learn a few if you invest some time.

Shadow—Many of your deadliest foes use Shadow-type attacks, so accessories that provide resistance to Shadow are extremely useful. You can learn a few Shadow skills yourself with the Elfstone of Fell Shadow.

STATUS CONDITIONS

There is a wide variety of status conditions that your enemies can inflict on you, and that your characters can inflict on their foes. Most negative status conditions can be removed by items or Idrial's Cleanse Shadow skill (which is also available through the Elfstone of Pure Light), but it's usually easier to just swap out an afflicted character for a fresh one from your bench. All status conditions are cleared at the end of combat.

Many enemies are immune to certain conditions, and you can tell which foe is immune to what by using Elegost's Examine skill or by checking the Enemies section of this book. In addition to the status conditions listed here, there are many that raise or lower a particular stat of an ally or enemy.

SLEEP

Sleep is one of the most effective conditions you can exploit, thanks to Elegost's Arrows of Sleep skill and its many complementary Passive Skills. A sleeping foe can take no action until it is hit or it awakens naturally after several turns. A few enemies can put your characters to sleep, but since foes will often awaken your sleeping characters with subsequent attacks, it usually isn't a problem.

STUN

A stunned character can do nothing, and does not get a turn. The duration of Stun is short, but since it cuts your roster by one-third, it is usually a good idea to Cleanse the condition or remove it with Dwarven Ale. You can also prevent Stun effects with Berethor's Stand Fast skill.

BIND

Various skills can bind a character's ability to use melee attacks, ranged attacks, or Spirit attacks. Since many enemies have attacks of only one type, this effectively takes them out of combat. When one of your characters is bound, he or she can usually use effective skills of another type, or you can switch to a different character. Bind Melee skills always have Paralyzing in their names; Bind Spirit attacks have Silence in their names; and Elegost's Arrow Splinters is the one and only Bind Ranged attack.

ROOT

The Root condition occurs very rarely in the game. (Elegost can inflict it with Fangorn Roots, for example.) It effectively binds all three skill types indefinitely.

SLOW

Many characters have Crippling attacks that slow their target, preventing its next action for a few turns. If used repeatedly, Crippling attacks can prevent a single foe from ever getting a chance to attack.

FEAR

A character afflicted with Fear will be unable to attack indefinitely. You can inflict Fear with the Elfstone of Fell Shadow, but it will mostly be used against you. Cleanse it quickly.

POISON/WOUND

A poisoned or wounded character takes damage from the initial attack and continues to take damage for turns to come. The amount of damage and duration depends on the attack that inflicts it, and an enemy can be wounded from many different attacks for a cumulative

PARTY SKILLS

Each character has three personal skill trees (see Learning New Skills). In addition, characters can acquire three new skill trees by equipping the Elfstone of Nimble Crafting, the Elfstone of Fell Shadow, and the Elfstone of Pure Light, each of which you will acquire on your journeys.

PERFECT MODE SKILLS

As you dish out damage like a hungry Warg, you build up Attack Momentum—this is a very good thing. When the bar in the lower-right corner of the combat screen fills up, you can unleash it in a powerful Perfect Mode Skill; these are epic skills worthy of the Middle-earth realm. Your characters gain these skills automatically as you level up, so characters at different levels may have access to different skills.

It's worth noting that there's more to Perfect mode than just Perfect Mode Skills. If you learn the right Passive Skills, Morwen and Hadhod will always score critical hits and Berethor will enjoy a 25% discount on his AP cost. You'll receive those benefits only when your Attack Momentum bar is full, so you may find it more useful to not use the skills, but rather to keep your bar full at all times!

Citadel Guard of Gondor

I BERETHOR

DESCRIPTION

At the start of the game, Berethor's power only hints at the incredible strength he shows in melee combat later on. His Sword Craft skills are fairly cheap, and when he gains two-, three-, and even five-hit combos (from Citadel Rage, Ecthelion Wrath, and Gondor Rampage respectively) he can end up doing more damage than the rest of your characters combined!

Berethor's attack skills focus primarily on melee strikes, and he lacks the ability to directly heal himself or attack foes at long range. This makes him an ideal candidate to equip the Elfstone of Fell Shadow. It will take a bit of work to develop the higher-level Shadowcraft skills, but skills like Dispel, Drain Health, and Black Speech are exactly what Berethor needs when sword attacks just don't do the job.

In addition to his Sword Craft skills, Berethor's Leadership skills can grant all sorts of bonuses to your frontline fighters. These skills are really useful only in long fights, but if you use Leadership only when you need it, you'll never get enough skill points to gain the better skills. For that reason, whenever you're facing easy foes or you have a few free turns before your enemy's next attack, it's a good idea to practice your Leadership skills. The sooner you learn skills like Fellowship Grace, Shield of Courage, and Last Gasp, the better you'll do against the game's bosses (Last Gasp in particular can make all the difference in later boss fights). Since Leadership skills are fairly difficult to develop, carefully pick and choose which limbs of the skill tree are worth learning. Skills like War Call are fairly redundant with ones like Ecthelion Wrath.

Berethor's most interesting Passive Skill is Challenge of Gondor, which makes him stronger while using his built-in Taunt Foe ability. Taunt Foe is one of Berethor's natural abilities, and it combines well with his natural strength and Counter Attack ability, especially if you devote a lot of your free skill points to Constitution and Dexterity. With Challenge of Gondor completing the combo, Berethor can be a boss's worst nightmare as he attacks for heavy damage while simultaneously pro-

Elf of Lothlorien

II IDRIAL

Q DESCRIPTION

You can develop Idrial in two distinctly different ways. You can focus on her Sword Crafts, making her a versatile warrior capable of doing both moderate damage and stunning, wounding, or weakening foes as the situation demands. Or you can focus on her Spirit Powers, constantly strengthening her ability to heal her comrades and hit foes with the unblockable Spirit attack Loudwater Fury.

You may want to make her a jack-of-all-trades, but there just aren't enough stat points to go around. To make Idrial truly powerful, you need to either dump all her stat points into Spirit, ensuring she has enough AP to cast spells every turn and that their effect is maximized, or distribute them to combat skills like Strength and Dexterity that otherwise develop very slowly. Both styles of play have their benefits, but since your party already has several strong melee fighters, it's usually best to focus on Spirit and try to learn key healing and revival spells like Galadriel's Gift, Cleanse Shadow, and the Valar skills as soon as possible. Idrial's sword skills will diminish considerably, but Loudwater Fury is usually a more-than-adequate replacement when you want to do some damage, especially if you learn the Fury of the Valar Passive Skill.

Idrial's other key Passive Skill is Frenzy. This skill is great for every character, but Idrial alone has enough AP to use it regularly without risk of running out of juice. A well-timed Frenzy can turn a battle around, giving you a chance to revive a character and heal him in the same turn, or cast Aura of the Valar on everyone at the beginning of a boss fight. Make sure Idrial also learns her defensive skills early, like Mallorn Armor and Fortunes Mastery, as her natural defenses are the weakest in your fellowship.

ELEGOST

DESCRIPTION

Elegost starts as a powerhouse fighter, but will come to lag behind the other fighters in terms of damage-dealing potential. He is far from useless, however; as he's the party's most versatile character and a key to any strategic victory. Elegost's strength comes from the diversity of his skills, and it is important to decide which ones you intend to learn early. His best Bow Craft skills are Arrow Flurry (which can hit two targets), Draining Shot (which allows him to heal himself), and Crippling Shot (which knocks enemies back on the Initiative queue). They are all fantastic, but his most important skill is a Spirit Power called Arrows of Sleep; successful hit will put an enemy to sleep, taking the target out of the fight for several turns (or until someone hits it again). Arrows of Sleep is strong by itself, but when in combination with Passive Skills like Sleep Volley and Linger Sleep, it is almost unfair. Many enemies are immune to its effects, but even putting a single enemy to sleep in a large battle will make a big difference. And since it does damage even to enemies that are immune to sleep, using Sleep Arrow with Sleep Volley allows you to damage every foe in combat, which is a rare ability. Crippling Volley does the same thing, making it another must-learn Passive Skill. Since so much of Elegost's strength is in his Passive Skills, it's crucial to take charge and ensure he learns them in the following order: Hands of the Bowman, Frenzy, Sleep Volley, Crippling Volley, Linger Sleep. You can take Elegost in other directions, of course; Paralyzing Shot and Arrow Splinters are even better than Arrows of Sleep against the right enemy, and late-game Spirit Powers like Northern Storm and Fangorn Roots are nice to have.

No character has a more diverse selection of abilities than Elegost. In fact, his very first Spirit Power—Aimed Shot—is useful throughout the game for administering can't-miss killing shots to weakened enemies who are about to get their turn. But none of Elegost's fancy added effects do you any good if they miss, so prepare to allocate some stat points to Dexterity. Spirit is important too; he can't learn all of his late skills if he can't use their predecessors freely.

DESCRIPTION

Hadhod, like Eadon, allows different players to take him in drastically different directions. One thing tends to be constant, however—a combination of naturally high Constitution, good defensive skills, and solid armor make Hadhod the hardest member of your party to kill.

As a fighter, Hadhod can deal solid amounts of damage, and is the only party member who can switch between slashing and blunt weapons to take advantage of particular enemies' weaknesses. He is the first party member that can learn a Crippling attack (Crippling Smash), which is incredibly strong against bosses or any slow, powerful enemy. By repeatedly scoring with this technique, Hadhod can prevent your enemy from ever getting a turn. Hadhod has several strong melee strikes in his Axe Craft tree (including powerful multi-hit attacks like Durin Wrath), in addition to some very cool Earth-type Spirit attacks. However, his greatest asset as a fighter may come from his Passive Skills tree. If you tend not to use Perfect-mode skills often, and you frequently find yourself playing with a full Momentum bar, then learn Overwhelming Axes as soon as possible and enjoy Hadhod's ability to dish out double damage all of the time!

If Hadhod has a potential weakness, it's his dwarven dexterity. Early in the game, he's fantastic, but if you don't spend most of his discretionary stat points on Dexterity, he'll have trouble hitting reliably later in the game. That's why focusing on his Spirit Skills is an appealing option—they always hit. Unfortunately, to get the offensive skills at the end of his Spirit Skill tree, you'll need to use a lot of his defensive skills early in the game, when you rarely need them. Many of them are quite good, however; Stone Shield combines nicely with Hadhod's Taunt Foe ability, Endure Flame is useful in the Mines of Moria, and Mountain Shield is strong tactic against certain bosses. But if your idea of a good defense is an axe in the head, you'll want to develop Hadhod as a fighter first and a Spirit-user second.

Hero

Maiden of Rohan

V MORWEN

Q DESCRIPTION

When Morwen joins your party in Rohan, she won't qualify as one of your strongest fighters. But if you diligently build her skills and level her up for a while, she'll transform into a fighter who can deal nearly as much damage as Berethor, and a thief with a wide variety of useful skills.

Morwen's greatest assets are her 5th tier Dual-Axe Craft attacks. Skip over Rage of the Maiden and immediately begin learning Poisoned Wounds or Twin Wounds, both of which do the damage of a normal attack and cause a lingering condition that continues to damage its target every turn. The effect is far more powerful than similar skills Idrial and Hadhod can learn, and no enemy in the game has immunity to wounds or poison. Learning both Poisoned Wounds and Twin Wounds sounds redundant, but since enemies can be both wounded and poisoned at the same time, it's actually not a bad idea. Or you can move on and begin learning Morwen's other powerful late-game attacks, like Paralyzing Wound and Wrath of Penmark.

Morwen's Steal Item skill quickly pays for itself, as her ability to steal from bosses usually results in her gaining powerful weapon upgrades. The stuff you can lift from normal enemies may not seem exciting, but recovery items can be precious, especially if you're not a fan of the Craft skill. Other thief skills are limited in scope, since you can't steal significant amounts of stat points or experience, but they can be quite strong when used at the beginning of long battles. Of course, effects like Steal Health and Steal Action are always useful.

Due to light armor and naturally low Constitution, Morwen is not as resilient as your other fighters. Her natural Dexterity will allow her to dodge a lot of killing blows, but you'll need to put some points toward Constitution to keep her alive, and she may require a lot of attention from your party healers. It's not a bad idea to give her the Elfstone of Pure Light so she can take care of herself, and with her natural speed and Battle Haste skill, she can heal, steal, and still make a major contribution to your party's offensive line.

VI EAODEN

DESCRIPTION

Eaden is a unique character with a wide variety of abilities. On one hand, since you get him late in the game, it will take careful planning to develop him to his full potential. On the other hand, you have total freedom to customize him in any direction you like, as he comes with a huge number of stat points you can distribute any way you like. If you want a heavy hitter that can put Berethor to shame, dump the points into Strength and Dexterity. If you want a versatile spell-caster, put them into Speed and Spirit. But whichever route you take, don't forget to pad his Constitution, since his armor is fairly light.

Eaden's Spear Craft skills focus on quality over quantity. Developing these core skills will allow you to advance his combat effectiveness quickly, and you'll get a shot at his best skills sooner than you might with other characters. Rupture Armor is a fantastic skill that is useful throughout the game, so it's easy to use it a bunch of times and earn Wrath of Edoras, a three-hit attack that can easily kill an Orc in one move if you've been focusing on Eaden's Strength. When you learn Rampage of Helm, Eaden will become a boss-fighting machine.

It's nearly impossible to learn all of Eaden's Spirit Skills unless you do a lot of backtracking. But that's okay, since the best ones are free and the other good ones are in the middle. Dispel is a great ability, especially against foes who have skills that damage you when you damage them. Drain Health and Drain Spirit ensure that Eaden needs no items or help from other characters to stay alive and active, and they make it easy for him to build Spirit Skill SP. Silence Evil is a good skill to aim for, since it can shut down a spell-focused enemy in a single action. Shatter Armor and Absorption are a lot of fun, and late-game skills like Scatter Health and Leech Essence give Eaden access to a variety of interesting abilities.

JOURNEY TO THE ELF OUTPOST

DIFFICULTY: 2

EXP: 330

Your quest begins with lone hero Berethor battling two Nazgul. It's an inauspicious beginning, and your odds of victory are nil no matter what you do. Fortunately, Idrial will appear just in time to save your life, and a new fellowship will be born.

Your first objective is Journey of the Elf Outpost, which will lead you to the east along a clear path. On the way you'll find an unguarded chest that contains Berethor's 3rd Age Gondorian Scouting Shield, and a second chest in the detour by the waterfalls that holds both Idrial's 1st Age Galadhrim Spirit Warding Pendant and a Kingsfoil potion. A third chest back on the path contains a piece of Lembas, but you'll be in for a fight with a pair of Orcs if you approach it.

Shortly after passing the stone Troll (who guards a chest containing a Longbottom Leaf), you'll be jumped by a trio of Orcs in a fixed battle. Use Idrial's Loudwater Fury to even the odds (it should be able to take out an archer in one hit) while Berethor beefs up your party with his Company Might Leadership skill. Don't be stingy with your skill points; this battle should put you up a level.

That should be the last fight before you reach the Elf outpost and find a save spot at the end of the path. A door to your right opens into the gatehouse, but if you head to the west first you can find an unguarded chest that contains Slime of Orthanc, a combat item.

HARK!

BATTLING ORCS

There are only two varieties of Orc in the first part of this area: Archer Rabble and Sword Warriors. The Archer Rabble have far fewer hit points, so as a general rule you should hit them first and hardest to take them out of the fight before you focus in on their stronger comrades. You'll gain a level after roughly every other fight in the early part of the game, and going up a level always refills your Action Points, so use your skills as much as you can. It's particularly important to use Berethor's Sword Craft so he can learn Orc Bane as soon as possible.

THE LORD OF THE RINGS

THE THIRD AGE

PRIMA OFFICIAL GAME GUIDE

Q DEFEND THE ELF CARAVAN

DIFFICULTY: 5

EXP: 830

The chests in the Outpost contain Berethor's Gondorian Steel Citadel Guard Pauldrons, as well as several useful recovery items. When you step through the door on the opposite side, you'll receive your next two quests: Defend the Elf Caravan and Collect Elf Artifacts.

In their zeal to save the caravan, Berethor and Idrial will dash forward a short distance, but if you turn back around you can find chests on this side of the gate and behind the other gatehouse, and enter that gatehouse for still more loot (including Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Silver Tiara of Eriador).

There's a new type of Orc among the party that is terrorizing the caravan: a Lesser Captain. This banner-wielding boss Orc can beef up his allies and summon a murder of crows to strike your party. With over 400 HP, he won't be falling anytime soon, so eliminate the henchmen before you focus your strongest skills on the boss. Victory will earn you a new item for each character: Idrial's 3rd Age Elven Gold Plated Fauld and Berethor's 3rd Age Steel Ithilien Long Sword.

Q OPTIONAL: HUNT THE WILD MEN

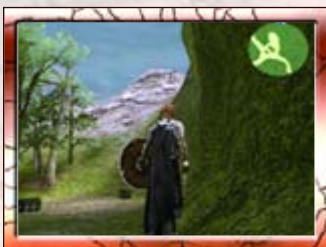

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 2,640

Following the battle to save the caravanners, take a look to the north to find a short detour that leads to a pair of chests. The chests contain Ent Bark and Leaves of Lembas. Fortunately, it's the enemies that guard the chests that interest us. Wild Men are tough and relentless melee fighters with about 300 HP each, and the white-haired Sword Warriors that come are even stronger. If you have trouble with these fights, you can come back and beat them more easily when you've found your third character.

A second detour to the south forks in two directions, each leading to chests guarded by progressively challenging Wild Men war bands. These chests also contain simple items, but when you kill the final war band you'll earn a huge amount of experience for your party leader. Make sure your weakest character is in the lead so those points go where you need them most!

Q RESCUE AT CARADHRAS PASS

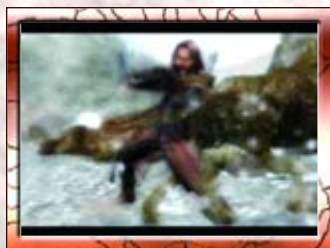

DIFFICULTY: 6

EXP: 990

Several chests and a save point are waiting at the Caradhras Bridge area, but there are no fixed encounters here. There may be a random encounter or two on the trail, but the first real battle begins when you find Elegost hunting in the pass, and a Starving Lesser Warg strikes. It has over 600 hit points, but it doesn't stand a chance against Elegost's deadly Creature Bane skill.

Saving Elegost marks the end of the Rescue at Caradhras Pass quest, and the beginning of the optional Hunt All Warg Packs in the Area quest.

Q OPTIONAL: HUNT ALL WARG PACKS IN THE AREA

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 1,160

If you head to the right (south) at the fork where you met Elegost, you'll come to a dark cave where the first Warg pack awaits. The cave exits to the bridge over the lower part of the pass, and the second pack is waiting on the other side of the Caradhras Bridge.

You'll find Idrial's 3rd Age Havens Steel Long Sword among the loot they leave behind.

When the road forks again, turn right, heading south toward a chest in a snowy ravine. You'll find the third and final Warg pack there.

EPISODE 1 - CHAPTER 1 - EREGION

Q FIND AN ELF HEALING ALTAR

DIFFICULTY: 6

EXP: 990

When you're ready to proceed, take the left fork from the bridge, heading due north. On the way, Elegost will update your journal with the Find an Elf Healing Altar quest.

If you take either path through the stones to your right you'll find a save spot at the Fellowship Camp and complete the Follow Fellowship to Moria quest. This will earn you 170 experience and unlock a new movie. If you choose to risk a few random encounters by continuing down the path, you'll find a stone Troll marking a chest that holds Berethor's 3rd Age Lothlorien Ring of Spirit Warding.

If you continue down the main path, you'll find another familiar location that the Fellowship passed through. It is now infested with Orcs, however, and only Elegost (or Idrial using Loudwater Fury) can hit the archer lurking atop the ruins.

To get through the ruins, you'll need to take the stairs to the left of the save point, then cut right through the center of the basement and go up the stairs on the other side. A fixed encounter awaits you shortly after the stairs, where you can earn Elegost's Dunedain Tan

Leather Underbraces by killing a few easy Orcs. The Elf Healing Altar is just beyond, beneath the lone sunbeam in this area's stormy sky. On the altar lies the Cracked Elfstone of Shadow Protection—an item any member of your party can equip and the first of the four Elf artifacts in this episode.

Q DEFEND ELF HEALING ALTARS

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 1,160

After an uneventful journey down the path to the west, your party will make camp and discuss their next objective: Reclaiming Elegost's lost map and the Dwarf who held it. A magnificent Elven structure lies in the grassy area beyond your camp, where you'll find the next Elven healing altar. First look for the hidden path near the entrance that leads to two stone trolls and two chests, one of which contains Berethor's Battered Steel Helm—a nice little pickup. Afterward, circle around the structure itself to find a chest with a Defy Shadow Phial.

Inside the structure, clear away the Orcs to finish the first half of the Defend Elf Healing Altars quest and earn Berethor a pair of Gondorian Steel Greaves. The altar holds a Cracked Elfstone of Armor Enhancement.

The path that continues west leads you to the top of the outpost you crossed under at the beginning of the game, where you can find Elegost's 3rd Age Dunedain Brooch of Arnor among the chests. It makes a fine addition to your stock.

The final healing altar is at the beginning of the next area, guarded as always by a small army of Orcs that includes new Orc Sword Veteran and Orc Shadow Chieftain foes. The chieftain should be your primary target, as he can cast Murder of Crows, which is probably the group's most dangerous attack. Fortunately, the trouble the chieftain and his lackeys might give you comes with a tidy payoff if you're successful against them. Slay them to earn Idrial's 3rd Age Elven Gold Plated Chestplate and complete the Defend Elf Healing Altars quest. The altar contains a Cracked Elfstone of Water Protection.

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 1,320

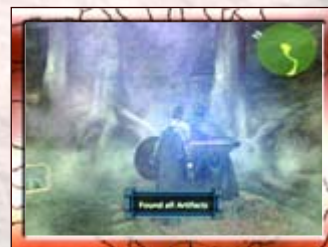

The winding maze beyond the waterfalls leads to the Dark Altar Crossroads. To your right is a pier with many treasure chests, including Idrial's 3rd Age Lothlorien Spirit Calling Pendant and Elegost's Dunedain Wool Ranger Cloak. A path heads east from the shore toward Moria.

First, however, you need to head straight past the save point, following the red dot to the fourth Elf artifact. In a fixed encounter here, you can win Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Golden Tiara of Earendil and Elrond's missing map. The altar holds a Cracked Elfstone of Health Enhancement, the last of the artifacts. This completes the Reclaim Elrond's Map and Collect Elf Artifact quests, and leaves you with only one unfinished objective: Finding Hadhod the Dwarf.

Q FIND HADHOD THE DWARF

DIFFICULTY: 9

EXP: 3,300

The last remaining path leads to the Eregion Moria Crossroads. Hang a quick left at the save point to find Hadhod locked in mortal combat with a Cave Troll. He'll prove an invaluable ally in your journeys ahead, so don't stand there and watch—leap into the fray and show him how it's done!

Hadhod comes with the Stone Shield Spirit Power built in, and that makes for a fantastic combo with the Taunt Foe ability. Cast the shield on Berethor and have him taunt the Troll. With the shield, Berethor's pretty much unstoppable here, and it will be nearly impossible for the Troll to break through your defenses. Among the Troll's belongings are Hadhod's Dwarven Boiled Leather Pauldrons and Dwarven Black Iron Helm.

You can hit the Watcher only with ranged attacks, which restricts you to Elegost's attacks

EARNING ITEMS IN EVIL MODE

Now that you've completed the first chapter, you can quit the game after you save and attempt Evil mode. In Evil mode you play as the enemies trying to kill your heroes in memorable battles from the previous chapter. In the first chapter, there is also a new fight in which the full party battles a Nazgul.

It's a lot of fun to use what you know of your party's weaknesses against them, like the fact that Idrial is the easiest to kill, and Hadhod the hardest. If you win the series of four battles in Chapter 1, you can choose a saved file and put Cracked Elfstones of Armor, Health, and Action Enhancement into that party's inventory.

Q CONFRONT THE WATCHER IN THE WATER

DIFFICULTY: 6

EXP: 1,980

You haven't seen the last of the Watcher in the Water, so prepare your party for an encore performance. First hit the chest on the right side of the stairs to find Hadhod's Dwarven Boiled Leather Vembraces, then follow the shattered pathway down to where the path meets the water.

The Watcher will strike again, and its stats and tactics remain the same.

If Idrial has learned Haste of the Elves, you may find that the Watcher fight goes more quickly if you cast it on Elegost, since his Creature Bane is your party's most effective attack. Make sure Hadhod is busily casting Spirit Powers of some sort; you want to learn his Endure Flame skill as soon as possible.

The treasure trove of items you get for killing the second Watcher makes it well worth the trouble: Elegost's Dunedain Layered Leather Overbraces and 1st Age Ereinion Brooch of Weapon Warding, plus a Cracked Elfstone of Armor Enhancement that will give a defensive boost to your least-armored character (probably Elegost).

Q FIND SEVEN DWARF RUNES

DIFFICULTY: 3

RUNE 1

There are plenty of chests in Moria, but the ones that hold runes are marked with red dots on your map, making them easy to find. After the chest with the Cracked Elfstone of Health Enhancement, the first rune will be just ahead. It's well guarded by two Albino Cave Wargs with over 1,400 hit points each. Once again, Eregost's Creature Bane will come in handy, but the Wargs' weakness to Water makes Idrial the party's true MVP.

Farther on, at the left fork past the save point, you'll find another chest well guarded by two Goblins. There's no rune here, but the chest does contain Berethor's Battered Steel Vambraces, which finally completes his first suit of patchwork armor.

Another Goblin awaits on the bridge in the right fork, and this is one you'll want to pay special attention to. Shadow Chieftains have 1,200 hit points, are great at dodging, and can heal 600-plus hit points with a single spell. They're also completely immune to sleep and fire effects. Fortunately, they have one weakness: All of their attacks are fire-based, so when Hadhod learns the Endure Flame Spirit Skill, your party will be nearly invulnerable.

RUNES 2 & 3

The next two runes are a short distance away, in a wide crumbling stairway. On the way there you'll encounter a fixed battle with a Warg and a lesser Goblin, which is noteworthy for the prize you'll receive: Berethor's 3rd Age Iron Cutlass of Isengard. Beyond that, a Cracked Elfstone of Health Enhancement is in a chest just to your right.

When you reach the stairs, you'll notice that rubble has created several small nooks on either side of the stairway. The two runes are in these small cavities, but so are plenty of other items, if you're willing to battle the Wargs and Goblins that guard the chests. In the first alcove you'll discover Idrial's Elven Steel Scouting Vambraces, and in the next alcove on the right you'll find a Cracked Elfstone of Fire Protection, which will compensate somewhat for her natural Elven weakness to fire. In the second-to-last alcove on the right you'll uncover Berethor's Gondorian Steel Citadel Guard Helm, which is a significant improvement over his old Battered Steel Helm.

RUNE 4

The save spot at the top of the stairs marks a four-way crossroads, and each of the new paths leads to at least one rune. The easiest way is through the first door on your left, which leads to the West Moria Crypt Room. You'll snag Rune 4 without a fight, and can then search the rest of the room for items or come back later when you're a bit stronger.

The fixed encounters here are pretty fierce, beginning with a three-pack of Albino Wargs from which you can win Elegost's Dunedain Suede Leather Jerkin. If you have your Perfect mode Arrow Volley charged up, now is the time to use it! If not, make sure Elegost has the AP to use Creature Bane five or six times in a row, and cast Haste of the Elves to turn him into a Warg-killing machine.

Three more Wargs guard a chest in the southwest corner that contains Berethor's 3rd Age Steel Long Sword of Arnor. Even better items await in the sarcophagus at the center of the room, but you can't open that until your rune collection is complete.

When you return to the crossroads, skip the door immediately to your left and take the last of the four paths instead. This leads to the Balrog Pit Overlook, where you'll find the rune you seek in the very first chest. But you're not done here yet! Hang a quick left at the save point (heading east) and follow the path to the end. There are a few chests on the way, which contain combat and recovery items. When you reach the wide-open area with all the ladders and scaffolding, heal up before you approach the chest to the right.

When you near the chest, an intermission will occur in which you discover the Key to the Book of Secrets on a Goblin's corpse. Immediately after finding it, you'll be jumped by no less than six Goblin Sword Warriors, who will completely surround your party. When surrounded, you lose the ability to switch characters, so you won't be able to tag in your fourth party member. Further complicating things is the fact that each character can target only the two Goblins in front of him or her. Fortunately, every character has gained the Wheel

About ability, a free action that rotates the whole group.

If Berethor is in the group, have him give the party a boost with Company Valor, a great Leadership skill that helps on both offense and defense. Hadhod should focus on making Stone Might Shields for any wounded party member, while Elegost should use Arrow Flurry to take out his pair of Goblins as quickly as possible. Idrial can probably kill a Goblin with a single casting of Loudwater Fury, but she should be ready to cast Gift of Elrond on anyone who becomes wounded. You'll win a ton of items for this fight, including Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarven Steel Battle Axe and Berethor's Gondorian Steel Citadel Guard Chestplate. You'll also complete the Locate Moria's Great Pit quest, earning 2,970 experience for your party leader.

Heal up if you need to, as you'll have to fight through an arduous series of fixed encounters on your way back to the crossroads.

RUNES 6 & 7

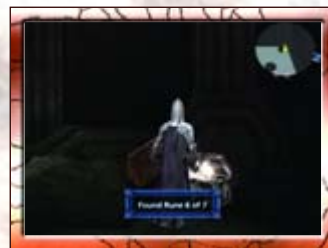

Take the first door to your right when you return to the crossroads, into the path that leads directly north. The first fixed encounter on the bridge beyond is with a determined Shadow Chieftain, but you'll be rewarded for your victory with Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of Moria Iron and a new movie scene.

At the second segment of the bridge you'll find chests to your right and left. Among the items to the right is a Cracked Elfstone of Armor Enhancement, and to the left you'll find Berethor's 2nd Age Dwarven Shield of the Lords. Even better, you'll win Elegost's 3rd Age Ithilien Ash Longbow by defeating the enemies who guard the chest. Revel while you can, because things will get a lot less fun when you have to fight three Albino Wargs at the end of the bridge.

There are chests in each of the four rooms of the Necropolis at the end of the bridge, and you'll find Rune 6 in the second room. In the third room, you'll have to fight a trio of Goblins lead by a Shadow Chieftain who will rapidly heal anyone you successfully damage. Have Berethor beef up the party with a little Leadership, and then focus all your might on the chieftain. Your victory will be rewarded with a pair of Idrial's 3rd Age Elven Silver Greaves, and the chests in this room contain 3rd Age Elven Silver Pauldrons (also for Idrial) and a Dwarven Steel Helm for Hadhod.

In the final room you'll discover Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarven Steel Walking Axe, which will greatly aid his ability to deal damage for your party. Rune 7 is

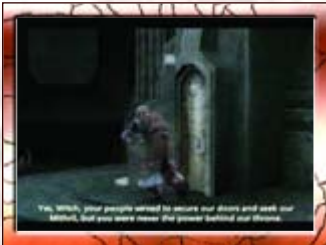

Q FIND THE BOOK OF SECRETS

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 3,960

If you got the key from the Balrog Pit Overlook, you'll see an intermission in the throne room where you open the Book of Secrets. Hadhod shoves the throne aside, unlocking the sealed door in the Crypt Room, where you found rune 4.

Before Idrial unseals the door, check the sarcophagus in the center of the Crypt Room. It opens if you have all seven runes, revealing a Dwarven Velvet Hauberk and Dwarven Velvet Tabard for Hadhod, and a new Scene from Middle-

Q FIND THE CHAMBER OF RECORDS

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 4,950

As you enter Dwarrowdelf, you'll spot a chest to your right that contains Idrial's 3rd Age Silverlode Raging Waters Pendant. You can see the influence this item will have on your stats by selecting "View Details" in your equip screen. Another chest along the left wall contains a few combat items, but this area is largely vacant. Completing the Find the Chambers of Records quest is as easy as approaching the door on the opposite end of the room.

When you enter the door, however, you'll find an ambush: Five Goblins lead by a Shadow Chieftain. You've come a long way since the beginning of the chapter, however, and it should now be possible to kill the chieftain in just one or two actions. With him out of the game, killing the grunts is just a formality. Rewards for your victory include Idrial's 3rd Age Woodland Steel Falchion, Berethor's 2nd Age Elven Ring of Wrath, and Elegost's Dunedain Wool

Q FIND BALIN'S WAR AXE

DIFFICULTY: 3

EXP: 2,970

When you search the body of the Troll, you'll find Berethor's Gondorian Steel Captain's Guard Pauldrons, and a new movie scene. There's nothing else to find in this room, so return to the now-smoldering Dwarrowdelf and update your journal with three new quests: Reach the Bridge of Khazad-dum, Find Balin's War Axe, and Find the Dwarf Lord Statue.

The Balrog's rampage has uncovered several chests, including one with Ithilien Ranger Leather Overbraces for Elegost (at the alcove in the map's northernmost point), and another with Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of Moria Steel (toward the southeast). However, expect to run into a great deal of opposition if you go treasure hunting, as the Goblin Archers, Sword Warrior, and Sword Veterans that you vanquished in the last chapter have received a power upgrade.

A pack of six Goblins will surround you in a fixed encounter as you proceed east, so keep your hit points up and be ready for a difficult fight. Victorious players will win Berethor's Gondorian Wool Fountain Guard Cloak.

Your next fixed battle is with a Cave Troll that can do a pulverizing 600 HP worth of damage in a single standard hit. Hadhod's Stone Might Shields are still effective, but they won't last long. The Troll holds the 3rd Age Dwarven Black Iron Walking Axe, which completes the Find Balin's War Axe quest, although it isn't as good a weapon as the axe you found near the West Moria Throne Room. Judging from the name of your newest quest, Kill Nine Trolls of Moria, there may be a few more Troll battles to come....

Before you rush through the door to the next area, raid the chest to the left of the doorway; it contains a Cracked Elfstone of Blunt Defense. It should give one character a smidgen of defense against Troll beatings.

Q FIND THE DWARF LORD STATUE

DIFFICULTY: 4

EXP: 3,950

A murderous onslaught of Goblins awaits you on the Chasm Stairway, with only a few chests of recovery items to provide respite from the gauntlet of battles. When you reach the large open area at the end, you'll find the Dwarf Lord Statue at the first red dot, and you'll be immediately rushed by the second Troll and his pet

Goblin Archer. The Dwarven Steel Pauldrons you'll recover from these monsters may not make up for the desecration of Hadhod's lord, but it will come in handy. The hefty experience bonus for completing the quest doesn't hurt either. You'll also find Berethor's Gondorian Steel Citadel Guard Greaves in a chest by the statue.

Q SLAY GOBLIN SPIRIT WIELDER

DIFFICULTY: 5

EXP: 4,950

When you enter the East Moria Balrog Altar area, you'll receive two new quests: Find Dwarven Dragon Armor and Slay Goblin Spirit Wielder. You won't have far to look for the Spirit Wielder; this super-powered Shadow Chieftain is leading a pair of Sword Veterans at the bottom of the pit just in front of you. Use Hadhod's Endure Flame if you have it, and try to take out the chieftain before his healing gets out of control. Avoid using fire attacks yourself, as this chieftain can actually absorb them as hit points.

Among the treasure

you'll find Elegost's Dunedain Suede Leather Skirt of Arnor and Berethor's 3rd Age Goblin Shield of Moria. You can also find Elegost's 3rd Age Gondorian Brooch of Spirit Warding in

When you come up to the other side of the altar area, a Goblin drummer will begin drumming to alert his horde of your presence. To complete the Stop the Goblin Drummer quest, rush straight for him, and you'll only need to fight two battles (including one with the third of the nine Trolls) before you catch a glimpse of him. On the third fight, you'll see the drummer, but you won't be able to target him until you slay the row of Goblins between you and him. Even when you accomplish that, he'll quickly summon more, so use skills like Company Might early on to ensure that you can do heavy damage to the drummer when the time comes. You'll earn Berethor's Gondorian Steel Citadel Guard Fauld for your hard-fought victory.

Q FIND DWARVEN DRAGON ARMOR

DIFFICULTY: 6

EXP: 5,940

A downward slanting passage in the southwest side of the Goblin Drummer's map will lead to the East Moria Goblin Catwalks, and the beginning of the Kill the Goblin Chieftain quest. Before you cross the makeshift bridge, head north along the west wall to find a chest on a ledge that contains Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of Moria Gold.

The fourth Troll is waiting at the end of the second bridge, with his Shadow Chieftain companion. Victory in this battle will earn you Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of Moria Silver. If you hang a left, heading south, you'll find a chest with Hadhod's 3rd Age Steel Dwarven War Hammer. Then head up the massive staircase to the mausoleum, where you can battle another Troll for Berethor's 3rd Age Steel Broad Sword of Gondor and 3rd Age Ithilien Band of Fortification, and Hadhod's 2nd Age Dwarven Dragon Helm. They're all strong upgrades that you're certain to find helpful. This completes the Find Dwarven Dragon Armor quest and marks the start of the Find the Goblin Bow quest.

Q KILL THE GOBLIN CHIEFTAIN

DIFFICULTY: 5

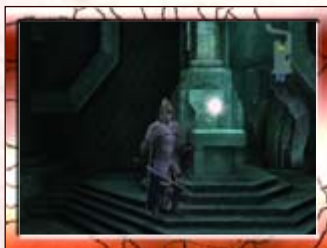

EXP: 4,950

Continuing south you'll find an altar holding an enticing find: Idrial's 3rd Age Rohan Steel Long Sword. Sadly (or not, depending on your outlook), it lies guarded by a trio of rather unpleasant Shadow Chieftains. Also take note of the small passage beside sword; the passage leads beneath the mausoleum entrance and up to the mausoleum's eastern wing, but not before it stops at a broken sarcophagus where you'll fight a pack of Goblin tomb raiders that includes your target in the Kill the Goblin Chieftain quest.

When you search the broken sarcophagus you'll find 3rd Age Elven Gold Plated Greaves for Idrial, and Elegost's 3rd Age

Moria Goblin Shortbow, which completes the Find the Goblin Bow quest and earns you another 4,950 experience points. At this point, the Find Lorien's Golden Helm quest will be added to your journal—sally forth!

REACH THE BRIDGE OF KHAZAD-DUM

DIFFICULTY: 10

EXP: 19,800

Continue up the pile of rubble to return to the mausoleum's top floor, proceeding south and then east in your pursuit of the final quest objective. On the way you'll find a few chests with recovery and combat items and several standard Goblin battles, but things really get interesting when you near the end of the area, where you fight the next two Trolls... at the same time!

Use your Perfect mode if you have it, or rely on skills with Crippling in the name, or ones that cause sleep or paralysis effects to distract one Troll while you concentrate on the other. When you pass through the door you'll arrive at the Bridge of Khazad-dum, completing this chapter's primary quest and earning a whopping 19,800 exp.

REACH THE BRIDGE OF KHAZAD-DUM

Q KILL NINE TROLLS OF MORIA

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 9,920

Here you'll see Gandalf, but before you can reach him, the final two Trolls will jump you. One is a Cave Troll Shadow Chieftain, a magic-using, drum-playing Troll that knows spells that can damage your whole party. He's the one to target with sleep, paralysis, or attacks like Crippling Smash or Stunning Strike, which prevent an enemy from acting. When you emerge triumphant, you'll collect a Polished Elfstone of Water Protection and complete the Kill Nine Trolls of Moria quest.

Since Gandalf seems to be holding his own against the Balrog, you have time to raid the chests for Berethor's 3rd Age Dwarven Battle Shield of Moria and Idril's 3rd Age Elven Gold Plated Battle Helm, which completes the Find Lorien's Golden Helm quest.

THE BALROG OF MORGOTH

The Balrog has 10 times as many hit points as the strongest enemy you've fought thus far. Luckily, you have a new ally for this fight—the mighty Gandalf, who can thrash 6,000 hit points out of the Balrog with each use of his Bolt of the Valar skill. He'll need your party's help to do it, however, so don't think you're just along for the ride.

Your first few turns should be all about preparation: Hadhod's Endure Flame, Gandalf's Endure Shadow, Berethor's Leadership skills and Idrial's Haste of the Elves (on Gandalf, of course) are a good place to start. The Balrog may be immune to a lot of things, but it isn't immune to all status effects: Elegost's Blinding Shot will take its toll (there's nothing more satisfying than watching the Balrog miss), as will effects like Piercing Might and Shattering Strike.

The Balrog's nastiest tricks are Pillar of Wrath and Bellowing Inferno, which burn away both hit points and Action Points in large amounts. Fortunately, Gandalf can steal AP from the Balrog and distribute them to the whole party with Wizard Drain.

Don't think your party can't get their lumps in too. Idrial can chip in with Loudwater Fury, which can do a good amount of damage (especially when enhanced with the Brunien Water combat item). It's hard to hit the Balrog with melee attacks, but if Hadhod can get in a Crippling Smash, you can cost it a turn or two of attacks.

Q FIND AN ELF NEAR THE RIVER

DIFFICULTY: 6

EXP: 9,900

A modest gift of an Ithilien Wool Ranger Cloak is waiting for Elegost at the water's edge, so grab that before you proceed north down the path. When you're ready to move on, you'll meet a new guest character, Aranel, who will join you in your first battle against the Uruk-hai. Aranel is an unfailingly accurate archer, and can boost both hit points and Accuracy for the party with his Elf Eyes skill.

After your victory, Aranel will update your journal with no less than five quests: Everybody's Grudge, Find Two Elves in the Cave, Find an Elf in the Gullies, Find an Elf Near the Cave, and Find an Elf Near the River. It seems we have some Elves to find!

If you investigate the nearest blinking red dot, in the loop just to the north, you'll find not an Elf but another new quest: Locate the Rohan Outpost. Shortly after the intermission, you'll battle a few easy Orcs in a fixed encounter, and claim Berethor's Gondorian Steel Captain's Guard Helm as a prize.

The nearest Elf is the "near the river" one, at the blinking dot northwest of the loop. As you approach what looks like a dead end, he'll come running down the path with four Uruk-hai at his heels. Uruk-hai are similar to normal Orcs, but with deadlier skills that can stun or wound their targets. However, these small groups should pose no threat to a party that beat a Balrog, especially with Berethor's Uruk-hai Bane skill at your disposal.

HARK!

ORCS AND URUK-HAI

The armored Orcs and Uruk-hai seem very similar, but in truth they have different vulnerabilities. The heavy armor of the Orcs in this area makes them especially vulnerable to blunt attacks (like the strikes from Hadhod's warhammer), while the lightly armored Uruk-hai are weak to slashing attacks from Berethor and Idrial's blades. Uruk-hai are also weak to Shadow, so the Balrog's Elfstone of Fell Shadow will be a very powerful weapon here.

Q LIBERATE THE STOCKADE

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 11,550

You'll discover a cave down the long path to the west of where you found the first Elf. There are no Elves here, but the Liberate the Stockade quest will reward you with a stunning view and a half-dozen armament upgrades.

A trio of Uruk-hai Scout Warriors will meet you near the entrance, with Idrial's 3rd Age Elven Gold Plated Pauldrons in their possession. Before you reach the cave's save point and a chest containing Elegost's 3rd Age Rohirrim Brooch of Fortification, you'll face two more fixed encounters that introduce Uruk-hai Captain enemies. The captain's crossbow is far deadlier than his minions' blades, so he should always be your primary target. Watch out for his Power of the Brood skill, which makes your characters share in the damage when they attack his minions.

Two more Captain-led Uruk-hai bands are blocking the way to the red dot at the end of the cave, but both carry items you'll appreciate: Berethor's Gondorian Steel Citadel Guard Vambraces and Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of Moria Mithril. The chests in the stockade contain Berethor's 3rd Age Steel Fountain Guard Long Sword and Idrial's 3rd Age Elven Gold Plated Vambraces.

Q LOCATE THE ROHAN OUTPOST

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 11,550

The large, empty detour north of the cave entrance has a single chest guarded by a powerful Uruk-hai brigade. But Idrial's 3rd

Age Easterling Steel Scimitar is certainly worth a little bloodshed. From here, head east, where you'll run into an old friend. Then move to the blinking dot toward the south, where you'll discover the Rohan Outpost and a save point. There's only one item in the small cavern, but it's a good one: Berethor's 3rd Age Rohan Infantry Shield.

HARK! THE NAZGUL HAVE FOUND YOU!

In this wide-open area you'll encounter enemies frequently. They're usually a mix of Orcs and Uruk-hai, with the occasional Warg in the caves, but every now and then you'll run into three Ringwraith Shadow Captains instead.

If you happen to run into this deadly trio, don't panic! You've come a long way since your last battle with a Ringwraith, and these wraiths are no longer immune to your attacks. While each Ringwraith has 9,468 hit points, their strikes typically do only 200 hit points worth of damage. That means that although this fight will be a long one, it is quite possible to win. The Ringwraiths hold the Sauron Blood combat item (which enhances Shadow attacks), and are worth enough experience to boost all your characters by a level or two!

Continuing east, you'll come upon a cave entrance set high into the cliffs. Before you go spelunking, search the base of the cliff opposite them to discover Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarven Steel Mortising Axe.

You won't get far into the cave before its occupant shows up to enforce his no-trespassing policy. This giant Warg has about 5,000 hit points and can typically knock 1,000 points off your life bars in a single hit. Set up a good defensive position with the combination of Stone Shield and Taunt Foe, and try to prevent the Warg's attacks with Crippling skills that knock him back a few places in attack-initiation order.

You'll earn Idrial's 3rd Age Fangorn Steel Falchion and a Cracked Elfstone of Action Enhancement for the victory, and that's only the beginning. There are no chests here, but the sparkling orbs over long-dead skeletons indicate good grave-robbing opportunities. The dead won't miss Berethor's 3rd Age Gold Ithilien Long Sword, Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Steel Fauld, nor the scores of recovery and combat items that clearly

Q FIND TWO ELVES IN THE CAVE

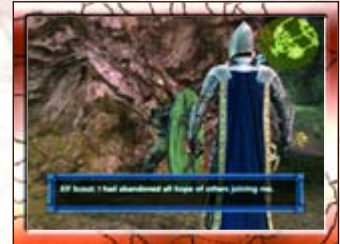

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 13,200

If you proceed south after defeating the Warg, you'll find one of the Elves you sought. Although you can never make it in time to save him, you can honor his memory by looting the corpses nearby, scoring yourself Cracked Elfstones of Piercing Defense and Action Enhancement.

The longer northern passage leads to a happier ending, as well as a fixed encounter with Greater Wargs that hold Hadhod's Dwarven Black Iron Vambraces. A chest nearby holds Idrial's 1st Age Eregion Weapon Warding Pendant.

Q FIND AN ELF IN THE GULLIES

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 13,200

The only way to reach the north end of this map is through the thin gully north of where you met Gandalf the White. You can't avoid combat in this tight passage, but you wouldn't want to: the first Uruk-hai band holds Elegost's 3rd Age Rohan Shortbow. Gandalf meets you at the end of the gully to update your journal with quests for the next area (Rohan).

If you head west (left) after clearing the gully, you'll find a save point and a ramp to a plateau where the gully Elf waits. He isn't under attack like the others, but he'll quickly draft you into helping him fight a pack of Orcs below. Only ranged attacks will work in this fight, but every member of your party should have one of those by now—except Berethor (though he can get a ranged attack through Shadowcraft). Target the Uruk-hai Captain first, then the Shadow Chieftain for a relatively painless victory that will be rewarded with a 3rd Age Gondorian Shortbow for Elegost.

If you go south from here, through what looks like a cave, you'll end up on a ledge overlooking the Rohan Stockade. You'll find a chest in the cave, but the better item is in the hands of the Orcs who guard it: Elegost's Minas Tirith Captain's Leather Overbraces.

On the high road beyond the cave, you'll face a difficult pack of Uruk-hai and discover chests with Berethor's Gondorian Steel Captain's Guard Greaves and Elegost's Dunedain Chain-Mail Skirt

Q FIND AN ELF NEAR THE CAVE

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 11,550

Weave your way east through the crags, aiming for the last red dot. The Greater Wargs that have the last Elf surrounded should be easy pickings for your heroes. The grateful Elf will tell your party of the Save the Rohan Soldier quest, but you won't be able to attempt it if you haven't saved all of the Elves.

There are a few chests nestled amongst the crags

in this area; they contain various recovery and combat items for your group.

Q SAVE THE ROHAN SOLDIER

DIFFICULTY: 9

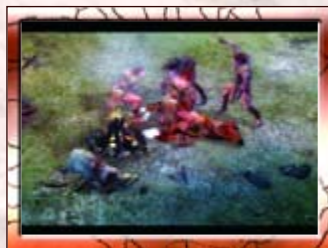

EXP: 14,850

You'll find the fallen soldier of Rohan in the north end of the map. He is being attacked by seven Uruk-hai. Fortunately, you won't have it quite so rough, because you only have to fight three at a time. When one of the Uruk-hai falls, one behind it will take its place. Stun the captain (on the right) or put him to sleep; he's the one with the deep bench of two guys behind him. Then take out the two guys on the left, and their replacements. That will allow you to fight the last three one-on-one for an easy victory.

EPISODE 2 - CHAPTER 2 - PLAINS OF ROHAN

Q SAVE THE WARRIOR

DIFFICULTY: 3

EXP: 7,430

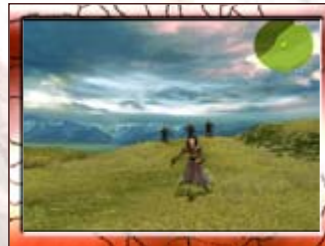

You begin this chapter with three quests: Riders in the Village, Riders on the West Side of the Warg Hive, and Riders on the East Side of the Warg Hive. A fourth quest will open as soon as you travel a short distance to the south, where you'll be run down by a villager fleeing a pack of Orcs. These are not the usual Orcs that you can defeat in two solid hits, mind you, but a special elite breed with over 6,000 HP apiece! That makes for a grueling fight, but at least Berethor will score a 3rd Age Rohan Steel Long Sword for his troubles.

The villager will give you the Save the Warrior quest, which takes place in the small village that is just ahead. Once again you'll find yourself in a fixed encounter with Elite Orcs, but this time you'll have a stranger fighting by your side. This battle is quite difficult, and—at this stage in the game—Morwen's constitution might make her vulnerable, so it's a good idea to cast Stone Shield on her as soon as possible. Among the prizes for this fight is the Rohirric Scouting Helm, Morwen's first item. In the ensuing intermission, you will receive the Morwen's Family

RIDERS IN THE VILLAGE

DIFFICULTY: 2

EXP: 9,900

Completing the Riders in the Village quest is as simple as approaching the cavalrymen to the east and talking to them. The "Rider" quests are all free experience, so you may want to put Morwen in the lead to get it. There are also three treasure chests in town, so set your sites on those as you go about your duties.

If you leave the village heading west, you'll end up in the Warg Hive, a series of tunnels that connects this area to a larger village in the north. If you leave the village through the southeast exit, you'll end up at the other side of the Warg Hive, but will have to fight through several random encounters to get there. Since you have to warn the riders on both sides of the hive, the best plan is to head east.

RIDERS ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE WARG HIVE

DIFFICULTY: 5

EXP: 14,930

Once again, the riders will be easy to find and it won't take much to convince them to head to Helm's Deep. You can cut directly through the hive to reach the riders on the east side, but if you'd like to find some armor and weapon upgrades for your party, you'll want to take some time to explore.

If you head left (north) at the fork in the center of the hive, you'll find an Ithilien Wool Captain's Cloak for Elegost at the end of the winding path. It's easy to get, as there are no fixed encounters on this side of the map.

The southern fork is significantly more challenging. One of its branches leads to a whole other floor of the hive, where three Orcs and three Wargs have conspired to set a six-on-three ambush. You'll be surrounded once again, so as you head up the ramp, make sure your top three characters are in fighting shape. This is a difficult battle, but you have a lot more tricks up your sleeve than you did the last time you were surrounded. For example, Elegost's Frenzy followed by two Sleep Arrows is a great first move. Your prize for this fight is Berethor's 3rd Age Jagged Scimitar of Dunland.

The path to the left leads to Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Steel Greaves. The chest in the path to the right contains only Waters of Gladden, a combat item. That leaves the path in the middle, which winds outside of the hive and ends in a treasure room that contains several supply chests and a Cracked Elfstone of Slashing Defense.

RIDERS ON THE EAST SIDE OF THE WARG HIVE

DIFFICULTY: 2 EXP: 14,930

At the other end of the hive you'll find the last group of riders... or so you think. The Riders Near Edge of Fangorn quest will be added to your journal at this point, and the men at the gate to the north won't let you through the gate without that last group of stragglers.

To find them you'll have to backtrack to where you began this chapter. You can either return the way you came, or make a loop by heading west from the gate. Either way you choose, don't miss the chests on either side of the stairs to the gate. The one to the right contains Berethor's 3rd Age Dwarven Band of Might.

RIDERS NEAR EDGE OF FANGORN

DIFFICULTY: 8 EXP: 19,800

After alerting the last riders, you'll be ordered to the Snowbourne Village. First you'll need to return to the Bridge to Edoras, and once again you can either cut through the Warg Hive or take the direct route through the village and face a few extra encounters. But be aware that with each random encounter in the Morwen's Village area, there is a slight chance you'll run into a Ringwraith.

A series of fixed encounters awaits on the bridge, starting with a battalion of Elite Orc Sword Warriors. Two more will join the initial pair after the battle begins, and each one of those has a replacement waiting in the wings. As before, the best strategy is to immobilize two of them (especially easy if Elegost has learned both Frenzy and Sleep Arrow), and then kill the other two and their replacements while half your enemies snooze. You'll win Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Steel Chestplate for this fight.

A similar battle awaits on the other end of the bridge, except this time there's a Shadow Chieftain in the mix. Both he and the Sword Veteran who replaces him are immune to Sleep, so save that for the weaker Sword Warriors. Prizes for this challenge include Elegost's 3rd Age Uruk-hai Scout Bow and Berethor's Gondorian Steel Warrior Battle Helm.

There's still one more fight waiting for you at the very end of the bridge. At first you'll be facing two Uruk-hai Scout Veterans and two Elite Orc Archers, but don't use your Perfect-mode attack yet; two Elite Orc Sword Veterans will join the battle in a turn or two. Fortunately, there are no reinforcements this time, so hit the weaker targets with your most powerful attacks to even the odds as quickly as you can. This fight's prizes are both for Berethor: a Gondorian Steel Captain's Guard

Chestplate and 3rd Age Gondorian Ring of the Citadel. Idrial can find a 3rd Age Morannon Obsidian Long Sword if

REACH THE GREAT HALL

DIFFICULTY: 9 EXP: 22,280

Snowbourne's great hall is near the north end of the map, and you'll need to open a series of locked gates to reach it. After you enter the town, grab Elegost's 3rd Age Rohirrim Brooch of Haven from a chest just ahead, then turn right and make your way up a winding ramp to the southeast hill. Scour all the nooks and crannies of the hill to reveal three chests (including one that contains Berethor's 3rd Age Rohirrim Royal Guard Shield) and a crank that will open a gate on the eastern side of the village. You can also win Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Steel Battle Helm of Lorien from a fixed encounter in the center part of the village.

Ignore the gate you just opened and head instead to the west, and up the hill that's to the left of the entrance. Here you'll be greeted by a pack of Urukhai that hold Berethor's Gondorian Wool Captain's Guard Cloak, and you can find him a pair of Gondorian Steel Captain's Guard Vambraces, as well. There are two cranks to turn on this hill; don't miss either!

Continue north along the west wall until you find the ramp up the northwest hill. There are two cranks to turn here, and you can win Hadhod's 2nd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of the Miners from the fixed encounter between them.

You can now cut through the center of town and reach the last hill, in the northeast section. But first hit the chest by the house at the base of the ramp for a long-awaited Morwen weapon upgrade, the 3rd Age Morgul Iron Piercing Axe. Before you reach the final crank, you'll have to fight a mixed group of Wild Men and Uruk-hai that possesses Idrial's 3rd Age Galadhrim Pendant of Restoration. Also, one of the chests on the hill contains Morwen's Rohirrim Iron Greaves.

Cut east from the center of town, and head north along the east wall to reach the Great Hall unchallenged and complete this quest.

Q LIBERATE SNOWBOURNE

DIFFICULTY: 6

EXP: 14,930

Wormtongue has twice as many hit points as his Uruk-hai henchmen, but they're so heavily armored that he's still the easiest in the group to kill. The Uruk-hai can't be put to sleep, but they can be stunned, crippled, weakened, or poisoned (by Morwen's excellent Poison Wounds skill). Do whatever you can to slow them down so you can concentrate on the far more dangerous Wormtongue without their interference. Since both Wormtongue and his henchmen are strong against Slashing attacks, Hadhod should switch to his hammer for the duration of this fight.

If you focus on Wormtongue, he'll go down fairly quickly. Poison or wound him early so you can get some damage in while you focus on your defense; you absolutely can't let anyone's HP drop below 1,000, lest his Black Speech attack wipe out a character. Make sure you use Morwen's Steal Item on Wormtongue before he dies; the 3rd Age Rohirric Gold Mortising Axe in his pocket is so good it's worth wasting a turn to have Morwen equip it in the middle of the fight.

When Wormtongue falls and it's time to deal with the Uruk-hai, switch to a magic-oriented group that can circumvent their heavy armor with spell attacks and continual damage from wounds and poison.

You'll get a ton of loot from this fight: Berethor's 3rd Age Rohan Steel Royal Court Long Sword, Elegost's Dunedain Chain-Mail Hauberk, Morwen's 3rd Age Gold Cuisse of Sanctuary, and the Elfstone of Pure Light that will unlock the Light Crafting Skill Tree for your party. MORWEN'S FAMILY

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 17,330

Turn the crank in the great hall to open the gate out of town, and head east through a Warg-infested tunnel. The left fork leads to a supply cache where you can nab a bunch of Loudwater Mists items (which awaken a sleeping character) and a 3rd Age Rohirric Bronze Felling Axe for Morwen. The right fork leads to the end of the level.

At the exit to the cave, you'll spot the long-awaited Eaoden just as he's about to fall prey to a pack of Wargs. Slay them to win his trust, as well as his Rohirrim Banded Leather Helm and Berethor's 3rd Age Dread Orc Blade of Mordor.

Continuing east, you'll soon run into the remnants of Morwen's family, an event immediately followed by a second boss battle. Sharku, Warg-Raider Commander may not hit especially hard, but his constant castings of Paralyzing Flash will repeatedly Bind Melee your fighters, forcing you to constantly clear them with Idrial's Cleanse Shadow or defeat him exclusively with Spirit Skills. Once again, make sure Morwen can successfully pull off a steal so you can grab Elegost's 3rd Age Rohirrim Brooch of Might from Sharku. When you finally overwhelm him, you'll also find Idrial's 3rd Age Steel Long Sword of Eomer's House, Hadhod's Dwarven Boiled Leather Greaves, and Berethor's 3rd Age Rohirrim Shield of Kings.

EPISODE 2 - CHAPTER 3 - HELM'S DEEP

Q SPEAK WITH GAMLING

DIFFICULTY: 5

EXP: 17,300

Helm's Deep provides a welcome respite from the constant battles of Rohan, but you don't need to be a Lord of the Rings buff to guess that this night ends in bloodshed. Still, enjoy the tranquility while you can, accomplishing your combat-free slate of quests: Speak with Gamling, Speak with Theoden, and Retrieve Helm's Hammer.

These quests can be accomplished in any order, but we'll start with Gamling. Head north from the stables, stopping to save your game and pick up Morwen's delightfully revealing Rohirrim Boiled Leather Jerkin. Hang a right at the top of the winding staircase and go through the dim passage before you to find Gamling's armory.

Gamling himself will present Morwen with a 3rd Age Iron Mordor Battle Axe, and update your journal with the Speak with Legolas, Speak with Gimli, and Speak with Aragorn quests. You can then raid the weapon racks wherever you see a white ball of light, scoring Berethor's Gondorian Steel Fountain Guard Greaves, Elegost's 2nd Age Numenorian Longbow, Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Steel Vambraces, and a Polished Elfstone of Action Enhancement.

Q SPEAK WITH GIMLI

DIFFICULTY: 5

EXP: 17,300

Take a sharp left outside the armory, then continue up the stairs, then continue up the stairs to Helm's Deep's Great Hall. Chests outside the hall contain Elegost's Dunedain Wool Riding Hood and Morwen's 3rd Age Rohirric Iron Battle Axe. (The Rohirric Iron Battle Axe is not as powerful as the Iron Mordor Battle Axe you just found in the armory, but it won't slow you down as much.) You'll find Gimli waiting inside the hall, where you'll be rewarded an experience bonus in honor of the hero's appearance. You may want to put Eaðoden at the fore so he can reap the rewards.

Q SPEAK WITH THEODEN

DIFFICULTY: 1

EXP: 3,470

Head up the thin staircase outside the Great Hall, and up to the inner wall. Here you'll find Theoden and a small experience bonus for your party leader. You can reach the outer wall by passing through an arch in the inner wall, and there you'll find a chest with Morwen's 2nd Age Elven Cuisse of Spirit Warding.

Q RETRIEVE HELM'S HAMMER

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 24,260

There's an archway just east of the entrance to the Great Hall, which leads to the fortified area on the southeast side of your map. You'll find a chest with Hadhod's 3rd Age Mithril Dwarven War Hammer just to the left of the door, the weapon wielded by Helm Hammerhand himself. This completes the Retrieve Helm's Hammer quest, and gives your party an excellent weapon versus the heavily armored Urukhai and Trolls in the battles to come, as both tend to be weak to Blunt attacks.

Q SPEAK WITH LEGOLAS

DIFFICULTY: 5

EXP: 17,300

A long staircase has been hewn into the rock on the east side of this area, and you'll spot a chest near the top that holds Morwen's Rohirrim Iron Pauldrons. The stairs leads to a sort of inner courtyard where you'll discover Elegost's 2nd Age Elven Brooch of Wrath in a chest behind a tent.

Several staircases lead from the courtyard to Helm's Deep's east wall, where you'll find a chest containing Hadhod's 2nd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of The Smiths at one end, and Legolas at the other.

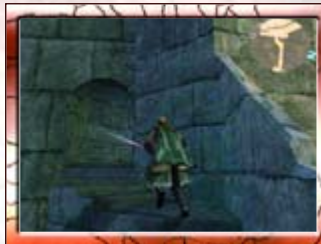

SPEAK WITH ARAGORN

DIFFICULTY: 5

EXP: 17,330

Head up the stairs beyond Legolas, and turn right to return to the stables from which you entered Helm's Deep. There you'll find Aragorn with one of the horses, completing the final precombat quest and earning Eaoden his last experience bonus. Your journal will be updated with the Return to Gamling quest, at which point your respite from combat ends.

RETURN TO GAMLING

DIFFICULTY: 3

EXP: 10,000

After you speak with Gamling and agree to his request, you'll be sent to the Deeping Wall to begin the battle for Helm's Deep. Make sure you've equipped all your characters with their new toys before you agree to join the fight, because this is one brutal melee!

DEFEND HELM'S DEEP - AID LEGOLAS ON THE WALLS

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: (34,650)

For the first few battles of Helm's Deep, you'll have the mighty Legolas at your side. Uruk Hewer is his most powerful attack, and you should use it freely, since Legolas's AP (as well as his HP) will be refilled between battles.

Your enemies here are not just the three Uruk-hai Berserkers you see before you, but the three ladders behind them as well. If you don't destroy each ladder as soon as the enemy before it falls, that enemy will promptly be replaced by an Uruk-hai

Sword Warrior. The ladders are surprisingly hearty (each has over 12,000 HP), and it may take multiple attacks from even your strongest fighters to topple them. The lightly armored Berserkers aren't very tough, but they do a ton of damage. Weaker characters like Morwen are unlikely to survive a second hit, so you may want to use Idrial's Aura of the Valar as a precautionary measure.

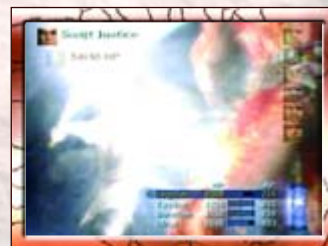

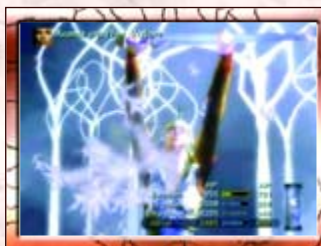

You'll receive a treasure trove of items for your victory, including Elegost's Minas Tirith Bronze Vambraces and Berethor's 2nd Age Numenorian Long Sword. You won't get a chance to equip them, so if you're itching to try out Berethor's new equipment, you'll have to use the Change Weapon command in battle to make the switch.

You'll have to fight this same battle three times before Round 2 begins, with the only difference being the difficulty of the foes that climb up the ladders. For the second fight, you'll win Berethor's 3rd Age Isengard Uruk-hai Battle Shield, and Idrial's 3rd Age Iron Cutlass of Isengard. For the third, you can win Eaoden's Rohirrim Steel Helm and Berethor's Gondorian Steel Fountain Guard Fauld.

Q DEFEND HELM'S DEEP - AID GIMLI AT THE BREACH

DIFFICULTY: 8 EXP: (34,650)

The four Uruk-hai Sword Warriors and Archers you see at the beginning of this battle are just the front line of a 12-man Uruk-hai army. Each row is between three and five Orcs deep, so this is guaranteed to be a long fight. To ensure you can use your skills without running out of AP, Berethor should keep your active fighters under Fellowship Grace at all times.

Gimli will replace Legolas as your guest warrior, and although he doesn't do as much damage, his 12,000 hit points will ensure you never need to intervene to keep him alive. Like Hadhod's Crippling Smash, Gimli's Balrog's Gambit can knock its target back a few steps in Initiative order, making it his most useful attack. With Idrial's Haste of the Elves speeding Gimli up, his attack will be one of the keys to victory. The other key is that all of the frontline Uruk-hai are vulnerable to Sleep attacks, so it should be Elegost's role to immediately put three of the enemy columns asleep while everyone else focuses their attacks on the fourth.

Among the replacements, you'll discover new Uruk-hai Sapper enemies with bombs strapped to their backs. These suicide bombers light the bombs on their first turn and then charge at a character to blow him or her to smithereens. It's a deadly attack, but the Sappers are so slow that you have plenty of time to kill them first.

The rewards for this battle include Eaðoden's 3rd Age Iron Uruk-hai Pike and Rohirrim Boiled Leather Vambraces. The pike is the upgrade Eaðoden needs to become a powerhouse in combat, and you'll be able to equip it immediately, as you're given a break from the action following this fight.

Q DEFEND HELM'S DEEP - AID ARAGORN AT THE GATE

DIFFICULTY: 8 EXP: (34,650)

Before you rush to the gate, turn left outside the armory and search the fallen soldiers. You'll find Morwen's Rohirrim Boiled Leather Vambraces, Idrial's 3rd Age Lothlorien Flaming Might Pendant, and a Polished Elfstone of Armor Enhancement. There are two more bodies by Aragorn.

Aragorn will join as a guest character when you reach the gate, and he will quickly prove himself to be an utterly stunning warrior. Few Uruk-hai can survive a successful Bane of Sauron attack, and it's tempting to use that skill constantly. But Rage of Elessar is more accurate, and you should use it when your other fighters have already softened up the target. Since Aragorn is your best hope for victory here, cast Haste of the Elves on him as soon as possible.

Once again, the three foes you see when this battle begins are only the very tip of the iceberg. Elegost can put the archers on either side asleep, allowing you to focus on the deadly Shadow Chieftain in the center. All the action is at this middle position; after no fewer than six rounds of Shadow Chieftains and Greater Captains, the final Uruk-hai will be replaced by an Attack

Troll Veteran. That troll will be replaced by another Attack Troll Veteran, who will be replaced by an even mightier Attack Troll Captain! These Trolls are terrifying foes, but a combination of Morwen's Poisoned Wounds and Aragorn's Bane of Saruman can kill even the Attack Troll Captain in a turn or two.

DEFEND HELM'S DEEP - FALLING BACK

DIFFICULTY: 8 EXP: (34,650)

Aragorn has moved on to bigger and better things, leaving you to fight an Attack Troll and two Berserkers without assistance. The enemies will not be replaced when they die, making this fight less dangerous than the greater challenge that awaits. Poison the Attack Troll early, then focus your attacks on the softer Berserkers. Powerful slashing attacks like Berethor's Ecthelion Wrath will show them the folly of running off to battle with only a loincloth for protection. Since the far-harder battle happens immediately after this, be sure to heal your characters and refill their AP before this battle ends. You'll win a 3rd Age Elven Silver Tiara of the Galadhrim for Idrial and a 3rd Age Silverlode Raging Waters Pin for Eaoden.

The next battle is a nightmare: Three Berserkers and an Attack Troll, each of which has three or four reinforcements waiting. This may be the hardest battle in the game, since Berserkers are fast and furious attackers, and often get to take several turns in a row, which allows them to shred even parties that are at full health. Use your first several turns to set up your defenses; Idrial should try to cast Haste of the Elves on herself and anyone else she can, and use Aura of Valar on herself and other key players if possible. Berethor should use his Stand Fast Leadership skill (since the Troll has a stunning attack), as well as Company Valar. If you've learned Last Gasp already, this is definitely the time to use it. Focus all your attacks on one column of Uruk-hai so you can even the odds as quickly as possible. Keep an eye on the Battle queue; when you can tell your enemies will get several turns in a row, use your Perfect-mode attack to wipe the board in hopes that their replacements will be slower to act. You'll earn Hadhod's Dwarven Mithril Scale-Mail Hauberk and Berethor's 3rd Age Rohirrim Shield of the Royal Court to win this challenging fight.

If you can't win this fight, strengthen yourself by getting in a random encounter after your last saved file. Kill all the enemies but one, and use Berethor's Leadership skill repeatedly until you learn Last Gasp. This skill buys you an extra turn when you're on the receiving end of a lethal blow; instead of dying, your HP merely drops to 1. The extra turn it provides often makes all the difference.

GOTHMOG, ORC ARMY COMMANDER

After saving your game, you can hit a chest behind you to find Eaoden's 3rd Age Hammerhand Pin of Might. When you approach any of the other chests, however, you'll be sucked into the battle of Osgiliath, a series of fixed encounters with no breaks in between.

The first four rounds are against simple Mordor Orc enemies. Typically, archers are weaker than warriors, but that's not so of Mordor Orcs—their archers' Morgul Shot attack has a Bind Melee effect, which leaves your characters unable to use anything but Spirit and Ranged attacks. This is a nightmare for heavy hitters like Morwen and Berethor, so it's crucial to target the archers first. If necessary, you can remove the effect with Cleanse Shadow or the Waters of Gladden item.

After four rounds of fighting alone (in which your party will win Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Greaves and Berethor's 3rd Age Silverlode Ring of Haven), Faramir will join you for a final battle with Gothmog, Orc Army Commander. Faramir's first several turns should be spent using Faramir's Quality on each active party member. This skill allows Faramir to deliver a counterattack each time one of his teammates is attacked (he also has Counter himself). There is no limit to the number of counterattacks you can do, so when Gothmog uses his Curse of Barad-dur attack to hit every party member, he'll be facing four counterattacks to the tune of 4,000 HP.

If you can't clear away Gothmog's henchmen with a perfect attack, you can at least take the archers out of the battle with Elegost's Arrows of Sleep. If you do this, however, you won't be able to use Faramir to attack, since his wide-range assaults would wake the enemies. It's best to pick off the henchmen quickly, as Gothmog is quite easy to beat when he's alone, especially when each of his attacks provokes a deadly response from Faramir. Don't forget to have Morwen lighten his pockets before he dies; he's carrying the 3rd Age Battleaxe of Khazad-dum.

You'll score Berethor's 2nd Age Steel Long Sword of Minas Tirith and Gondorian Steel Fountain Guard Chestplate from the battle, and Faramir will update your journal with the chapter's first quest: Save the Defenders.

Q SAVE THE DEFENDERS

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 27,720

After besting Gothmog, you'll be free to raid the nearby chests. To the left of the entrance are Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Vambraces, to the right are Hadhod's 1st Age Golden Belt Buckle of The Lords and Morwain's 3rd Age Rohirric Double-Bit Axe. None of these items will come without a fight, but the Orcs and Trolls who guard them shouldn't provide much challenge with your current degree of expertise.

When you've saved all of Faramir's men in this area, head to the north, where the battle still rages. Help out the guy to your right as you enter, and you can win Hadhod's 2nd Age Dwarf Belt Buckle of the Lords. There's an interesting twist in the battles to the left, where a wall in the middle of the field splits the fight, preventing melee fighters from hitting foes on the other side of the battlefield. Your long-range attacks will continue to be effective, however, and the difficulty of the battle is certainly worth the prizes of Morwen's 3rd Age Gondorian Cuisse of Haven and Eaothen's 3rd Age Gondorian Steel Infantry Spear. If that particular spear doesn't suit your tastes for Eaothen, he can pick up the awesome 3rd Age Rohirric Steel Spear in a chest nearby.

You'll run into more and more Mordor Orc Captains as you proceed farther north. These Orcs can use the Morgul Mirror skill to set up shields that reflect half your party's melee damage back at you—a very powerful effect. Either work around it by using Spirit skills and ranged attacks exclusively, or use Dispel to remove it (Dispel is available to Eaothen and whoever has the Elfstone of Fell Shadow).

Near the north end of the second map you'll see two of Faramir's men fighting in a side alley that contains a save point and two chests. One contains a 3rd Age Mirkwood Bow and Dunedain Wool Ranger Hood for Elegost, while the other holds Eaothen's Rohirrim Plumed Steel Royal Guard Helm and a Polished Elfstone of Spirit Enhancement.

On your way out, you'll fight three more battles in which your party is split by rubble on the battlefield. The first will reward you with Hadhod's Dwarven Steel Greaves (a great armament you've no doubt been hoping for) and Eaothen's 3rd Age Mearas Pin of Haven, and you'll score Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Mithril Chestplate and Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Helm for another. The chest contains Idrial's 2nd Age

Elven Steel Pauldrons.

The plaza beyond is where Faramir's last few men remain locked in combat, this time with Wargs as well as Orcs. In addition to completing the quest, saving every last one of Faramir's men will win you a great many valuable items. Between the combat loot and the five chests in the plaza, you can obtain nine armaments in the plaza alone: Berethor's 3rd Age Rohirrim Battle Shield, Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Pendant of Wrath and 2nd Age Elven Crystal Tiara of Nenyra, Elegost's 2nd Age Rivendell Brooch of Sanctuary, Hadhod's Dwarven Steel Plate Vambraces, Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Chain-Mail Hauberk and 3rd Age Leather Cuisse of Haste, and Eaothen's 3rd Age Easterling Polearm and 3rd Age Rohirrim Battle Shield.

Q TO THE BRIDGE!

DIFFICULTY: 10 EXP: 46,200

Gothmog has moved up to the rooftops across the plaza, where he is waiting to do battle again. Head up the wooden plank at the north end of the map, where you'll have to fight your way past four rows of Goblins in two battles (earning Berethor's 2nd Age Steel Numenorian Battle Helm in the process).

At the top, Faramir will join you again, and Gothmog will be accompanied by a pair of Shadow Chieftains and an Orc Captain. If you kill any of his friends, Gothmog will use his new Black Gate skill to summon more immediately, so the key is to keep them out of the fight without killing them. Elegost's Crippling Shot is an ideal solution. (Crippling attacks are also quite effective against Gothmog.) Since your only hope of victory is to focus your assault on Gothmog, you'll need to make sure to Dispel any Morgul Mirrors cast by his Orc Captain friend as soon as he casts them, and spend the big AP on power attacks like Berethor's Ecthelion Wrath and Eaothen's Wrath of Edoras.

The prizes for Gothmog's final reckoning include Hadhod's Dwarven Steel Scale-Mail Tabard and Elegost's Dunedain Scale-Mail Hauberk.

PRIMA OFFICIAL GAME GUIDE

Q RESCUE IDRIAL! - ROOFTOPS

DIFFICULTY: 10 EXP: (46,200)

When Gothmog falls, the gates to the east will open, but you'll be only a few steps through them when Idrial is taken by a Nazgul. You'll spend this quest alternating between Idrial fighting solo, and the rest of your party raiding the sewers in search of a passage to the island where she's been taken.

Idrial shouldn't have too much trouble in her solo fights if you've been pushing her Spirit Skills. A good Wounding Strike or two will go a long way, but the Mordor Orc Archers she has to fight will bind her melee skills after the first turn or two, forcing her to rely on Loudwater Fury to protect herself. Your first action should always be Haste of the Elves, then an Aura of the Valar, just in case.

Meanwhile, Berethor's group will have their hands full with a Ringwraith Fell Beast Captain. The best strategy whenever you're fighting a single, strong foe is a combination of Morwen's Poisoned Wounds and a series of Crippling attacks that prevent your enemy from striking back. Should you ever fail to prevent the Ringwraith's actions, you can expect each party member to take 1,500 damage, and you may even lose a party member entirely due to Fear. With no Idrial to heal you or cast Cleanse Shadow, neither option is much fun.

After the first such fight, you can hang a left or continue straight. You don't need to go straight, but for the price of another Ringwraith battle, you can win Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Pauldrons and hit a pair of chests that contain Hadhod's 2nd Age Dwarven Steel Battle Axe and a Polished Elfstone of Blunt Defense.

Heading left, you'll find a save point just before the entrance to the sewers, and will do battle with the Ringwraith both before and after the save point. The second time, you'll win Rohirrim Leather Tassets and a 3rd Age Royal Court

Q RESCUE IDRIAL! - SEWERS

DIFFICULTY: 10 EXP: (46,200)

Upon entering the sewers, you'll receive the Spoils of War quest. To fulfill it, go straight at the first fork instead of turning right toward the red dot. After the path turns left, you'll find a rickety bridge over a puddle of water. The prize you seek is in the water itself: Berethor's 3rd Age Easterling Battle Shield.

As you explore the sewers, you'll be challenged by a series of random encounters that could include anything from Trolls to Ringwraiths. The most dangerous encounters are the ones Idrial has to face alone, however, don't spend any more time in the sewers than you have to.

Heading east from the save point, you'll find a detour to your right where you can get Eaden's Rohirrim Steel Pauldrons from a chest. When you reach the large pool on the eastern side of the map, your journal will be updated with the Hands of Healing quest. The item you seek is down the dead-end passage to the northeast—the one in between the two tunnels that loop together. The same chest also contains Eaden's 3rd Age Ash Spear of the Royal Guard and Berethor's 2nd Age Imladris Ring of Sanctuary. The only way out of the sewers is through the curving tunnel to the left of that one, which connects to the western exit (the direct route is blocked by rubble).

Before you leave the sewers, you can search the other three branching paths for treasure. Going clockwise, the left path's chest contain a Polished Elfstone of Earth Protection; the curving path has two chests; they bear Eaden's Rohirrim Steel Vambraces, Berethor's Gondorian Wool Warrior Cloak, and Idrial's 2nd Age Numenorian Command Pendant. The last path's chest contains Hadhod's awesomely powerful 2nd Age Dwarven Mithril Double-Bit Axe. To the right of the entrance to the southern dead end, you'll find a chest containing Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Mithril Greaves and Berethor's Gondorian Steel Fountain Guard Pauldrons.

WITCH-KING FELL BEAST COMMANDER

Only Berethor can reach Idrial in time to help her fight off a pair of Ringwraiths. This fight is just practice for a tougher bout ahead, so keep your hit points high. The next fight is against the Witch-king of Angmar, but don't waste a bunch of AP on Leadership and enhancement skills yet. The first few turns are just to show you that Berethor can't hurt this foe with conventional weapons, a situation that will be remedied in a brief event scene. But any enchantments you cast before the scene will be lost when the battle begins in earnest.

After Berethor draws his new sword, use your Double Attack and Frenzy skills to lay down some Leadership, and have Idrial cast Haste of the Elves on Berethor and Aura of the Valar on herself. As long as you can keep Berethor's HP and AP up and have him using Ethelion Wrath every turn, he should finally get his revenge against the most powerful Nazgul.

You'll win Eaden's 3rd Age Emnet Pin of Fortification for slaying the Ringwraiths, and receive Berethor's 2nd Age Mithril Long Sword of Minas Tirith and Idrial's 2nd Age Steel Elven War Sword for besting the Witch-king.

BOSS! WITCH-KING FELL BEAST COMM.

DEFEND THE COURTYARD

DIFFICULTY: 5 EXP: 35,640

As in Osgiliath, there are several small pockets of fighting in the Minas Tirith Courtyard. You'll run into a few Orcs as soon as the level begins, and you can complete the Defend the Courtyard quest by intervening in the three battles in the corners of the courtyard. Your foes are Mordor Orcs, a slightly stronger breed than the Orc vermin that infested Osgiliath, but little threat to your high-level warriors.

The first fixed encounter will net you

Eaoden's Rohirrim Steel Chain-Mail Skirt and Elegost's 3rd Age Mordor Orc Shortbow, and the ensuing courtyard battles have Berethor's 3rd Age Gondorian Battle Shield, Eaoden's 3rd Age Rohirrim Shield of the Royal Court, and Elegost's Dunedain Scale-Mail Skirt as prizes. The chests in the courtyard hold mostly combat items, but the one in the southwest corner holds Berethor's Gondorian Mithril Fountain Guard Helm.

SLAY THE RAMPAGING TROLL

DIFFICULTY: 4 EXP: 23,760

With the courtyard clear, all that's left is to charge the Trolls blocking the southern exit. There are three Attack Troll Captains here, and several more waiting in the wings. But before the Troll reinforcements hit the field, a series of lowly Mordor Orcs will rush in to replace the starting lineup. Mordor Orcs are vulnerable to Sleep, so kill all three of the initial Trolls and then have Elegost fire a volley of Arrows of Sleep to keep the other two Orcs out of the fight while you clear the rows one at a time.

Take a moment to heal and save, then follow Gandalf through the passage, where you'll be met with a rapid-fire succession of Orc battles. These are fairly easy fights, but Mordor Orcs are ruthlessly quick and can often take a dozen turns in a row if you don't kill one or two of them before their turns come around. Hit them hard and fast, and you'll earn Elegost's Dunedain Wool Captain's Hood without much trouble. When you're free to move again, go up the stairs to the left to hit a chest with Hadhod's last and best buckle, the 1st Age Mithril Belt Buckle of the Fathers.

The rampaging troll should be easy to spot amidst the flaming debris to your right. Slay the Troll and his companion will earn you Hadhod's Dwarven Black Iron Pauldrons, and grab Eaoden's 3rd Age Citadel Guard Bronze Spear from a chest in the flames. A chest at the south end of this map contains Idrial's 2nd Age Lune Silver Scimitar and Morwen's 3rd Age Bronze Cuisse of Fortification.

THE LORD OF THE RINGS

THE THIRD AGE

PRIMA OFFICIAL GAME GUIDE

EPISODE 3 - CHAPTER 2 - MINAS TIRITH

Q DEFEAT AN OUTER WALL TROLL

DIFFICULTY: 4

EXP: 27,760

As before, there's nothing easier to spot than an angry Troll. You'll see him to the left at the fork, and when you rush in to save the beleaguered soldier, you'll end up in another battle versus an Attack Troll

Captain and Attack Troll Veteran duo. A movie scene and experience points are your rewards for victory, and you can pick up Berethor's Gondorian Steel Warrior Greaves from a chest in the corner.

Q SAVE TROOPS FROM A TROLL

DIFFICULTY: 4

EXP: 27,760

Next head south past the save point and up the stairs, after raiding a nearby chest for Berethor's 2nd Age Numenorian Ring of Command. The second Troll is on the wall and to the left. You can score Idrial's 3rd Age Fangorn Binding Pendant from the battle. Head south through the archway to a region with better looting opportunities.

As soon as you pass through that archway, your party will be forced to split up. Morwen, Eaden, and Hadhod have the easier job of battling a trio of Mordor Orc Veterans. They aren't difficult foes, but you'll need to deal with them fast. If you can't kill the Orcs within three turns, the survivors will break through to challenge the party of Elegost, Berethor, and Idrial, and those three have enough problems without having to deal with Hadhod's leftovers. Elegost's company gets a bit more time to kill their foe, a Ringwraith Fell Beast Captain, but if they can't win the fight in a few turns, you'll have to start over against different, full-health foes. So hit the Ringwraith with absolutely everything you have: A Perfect-mode attack, Idrial's Haste on your best fighters, Berethor's best attacks delivered twice with Double Strike, and Elegost's Frenzied Creature Bane or True Shot (if you have it). If the Ringwraith manages to cast Fear on someone, erase it with a dose of Dwarven Ale or Idrial's Cleanse Shadow immediately.

If Elegost's team can beat the Ringwraith in time, Hadhod's party will be able to use the catapult before the next wave of Mordor Orc Veterans strike. Then, for a second time, Elegost's party will need to beat the Ringwraith. There's no time limit this time, though, just a normal life-or-death battle that concludes this difficult series

Q DEFEND THE THIRD GATE

DIFFICULTY: 4

EXP: 29,700

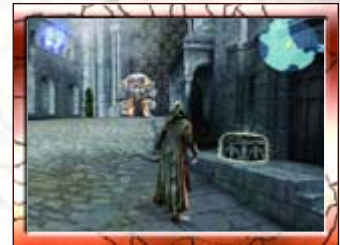

Chests litter the Minas Tirith Second Gate area. The two in the central area collectively contain Elegost's Minas Tirith Mithril Vambraces, Hadhod's 2nd Age Dwarven Mithril Piercing Axe, and a Polished Elfstone of Action Enhancement. There isn't an armament in the chest in the northeast corner, but you can win Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Chain-Mail Skirt from the enemies who guard it. More first-class loot waits in the hands of the Troll tag team at the western gate; they hold Berethor's Sword of the Stewards of Minas Tirith and Eaothen's Wild Man Spear of Dunland.

There are several easy-to-reach chests on the stretch of road beyond that gate. In the first you'll find Berethor's Numenorian Steel Pauldrons, and the third contains both Morwen's 2nd Age Mithril Cuisse of Might and Eaothen's 2nd Age Rivendell Pin of Sanctuary. You'll find Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Mithril Fauld in a chest by the save spot, and after a long trip up the ramp to the third level, you can win Idrial's 2nd Age Eriador Iron Falchion from the Orcs

Q STOP NAZGUL AND FELL BEAST

DIFFICULTY: 7

EXP: 41,580

As you head west through the street, you'll see what looks like an easy, unguarded chest at the end of the road. But when you approach, you'll be jumped by four Easterling Warriors, powerful new foes that will make you nostalgic for Mordor Orcs. The Warriors are capable of only simple sword attacks, and although it will take a while to cut through their defenses (skills like Pierce Armor are good here), they aren't unusually dangerous. The pike-wielding Warrior Veterans, however, can be brutal; they can put your guys to sleep, erect Morgul Mirror-like shields, and speed up their comrades. You absolutely must kill them first. The chest contain's Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Mithril Vambraces and a Polished Elfstone of Shadow Protection.

You'll receive your new quest, Stop Nazgul and Fell Beast, when you head north into the city. You won't have to look far for your quarry, as the Ringwraith will attack when you approach the chest immediately to your right. This particular Ringwraith Fell Beast Captain has nearly double the usual amount of hit points (around 150,000), but the standard strategy of keeping it at bay with Crippling attacks still works like a charm. At least its massive supply of hit points gives Morwen plenty of time to steal its 3rd Age Rohirric

Gold Felling Axe! She'll also get a Rohirrim Steel Scale-Mail Hauberk from the treasures it leaves behind, and Eaoeden will find a similar Rohirrim Steel Chain-Mail Hauberk in the chest it guarded.

AID GANDALF VS. WITCH-KING

DIFFICULTY: 8

EXP: 47,520

There are plenty more chests in the road that follows. The first has Berethor's 1st Age Eregion Ring of Weapon Warding, and the next contains a Rohirrim Heavy Steel Helm for Morwen and a Rohirrim Velvet Overcloak for Eaoeden. The streak of incredible items continues with Berethor's Gondorian Steel Warrior Vambraces in the chest near the far gate.

But enough with the looting; it's time to get down to business. Your journal will be updated with the Aid Gandalf vs. Witch-king quest, an event that occurs as soon as you pass through the door. Gandalf the White joins your party this time, and while he has a new skill for you to play with (Flame of Arnor), it can't top the power of Bolt of the Valar. The Witch-king is basically a more intense, powerful Ringwraith Fell Beast Captain, and your usual tactics (Crippling moves and powerful attacks) are as good as ever. With a Hastened Gandalf fighting by your side, the Witch-king doesn't stand much of a chance.

You'll win Berethor's 2nd Age Gold Elven Battle Shield for your victory, and can search the citadel area for chests that contain Eaoeden's 2nd Age Isildur Pin of Wrath and Rohirrim Steel Captain's Greaves. Don't miss another chest in the alcove near the exit, which holds Hadhod's 2nd Age Steel Dwarven War

Q RECOVER BANNER OF ELENDIL

DIFFICULTY: 6

EXP: 35,640

There is a massive brawl in the throne room, but before you join in the fun turn back the way you came and hit the two chests by the door to reveal Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Royal Guard Vambraces, Eaden's 2nd Age Numenorian Pin of Command, and Hadhod's Dwarven Mithril Helm.

Your goal here is to approach the throne, but you don't want to miss a chance to help out your fellow Gondorians on the way. After all, each battle with Mordor Orcs and Easterlings (usually the easier Warrior variety) will net you a worthwhile prize. The rewards include Berethor's 1st Age Steel Long Sword of Eriador, Idrial's 2nd Age Elven Mithril Pauldron, and Berethor's Gondorian Steel Warrior Chestplate.

After the last battle, go no farther toward the throne! Simply approaching it will end this level, and there are tons of chests to grab here, some well-hidden among the columns on either side of the room. Before you move on to your final challenge, make sure you've collected Eaden's Rohirrim Mithril Helm of the Great Hall and Rohirrim Steel Captain's Pauldrons, Elegost's 2nd Age Numenorian Brooch of Command, and Idrial's 2nd Age Rivendell Pendant of Sanctuary. The battle at the throne is an easy one; just a bunch of Mordor Orcs who are holding onto Hadhod's Dwarven Mithril Scale-Mail Tabard.

Q THE PELENNOR FIELDS FRONT LINE

The game's final chapter is heavy on combat; the chapter's two quests are trials of combat that will force you to hone your strategic skills. You need only walk as your map directs you to proceed. Despite the straightforward map, it is easy to get disoriented in this chapter, since you won't always end battles exactly where you began them. To avoid getting lost, try to remember in which cardinal direction you were moving. There are encounters every step of the way, so if you're not seeing any enemies, you're probably headed in the wrong direction.

Your quest may be nearing its end, but there are still scores of items to find: You'll win Eaoden's 3rd Age Rohirrim Royal Guard Shield from the Elite Mordor Orcs in the battle that begins this chapter, and a chest by the nearby save point contains Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Captain's Pauldrons. Chests are fairly rare in this chapter, but you'll find another just ahead and to the left. It contains Elegost's Gondorian Wool Fountain Guard Hood and Eaoden's 1st Age Galadhrim Pin of Spirit Warding. A fixed encounter with Elite Mordor Orcs occurs when you take a few steps east of the chest, and the bested Orcs will give up Berethor's 1st Age Mithril Long Sword of the Valar and Eaoden's 2nd Age Elven Gold Spear of Amon Hen.

Q THE MAZE OF CORPSES

After the path turns south, you'll find yourself at a fork in the road. Your destiny is to the east, but farther south you'll find a dead end with a chest that contains Eaoden's 2nd Age Fountain Guard Bronze Spear, and an encounter with an Orc-and-Troll combo that holds Idrial's 2nd Age Forlindon Mithril Falchion and Berethor's 3rd Age Shield of the Stewards.

Continuing east, the path forks again. The dot beckons on the eastern horizon, but treasure hunters should turn north, where they can win Hadhod's Dwarven Mithril Pauldrons and Morwen's Rohirrim Steel Tassets from a band of Orcs, and raid a chest for Hadhod's 3rd Age Dwarven Mithril Walking Axe. A chest at the end of the path holds Idrial's 3rd Age Elven Silver Tiara of Caras Galadhon. Back on the main path, you'll fight a Ringwraith Fell Beast Captain for Eaoden's Rohirrim Steel Scale-Mail Hauberk and Berethor's 2nd Age Earendil Mithril Battle Shield. Look around after the fight, or you might miss the save spot behind you.

Going forward, you'll face Elite Easterling Warriors. They're far heartier than the Easterlings in Minas Tirith, but they have basically the same moves. Easterlings are immune to all your fancy tricks, so your best bet is to lay into the Veteran with your strongest attacks.

If you head south at the next fork, you'll find the last in a series of lucrative dead ends. A mixed group of Orcs and Easterlings will bequeath Hadhod a set of Dwarven Mithril Vambraces and Greaves, and a chest behind their shattered war machine holds Elegost's 1st Age Galadhrim Brooch of Spirit Warding and Eaoden's 1st

Q THE MUMAKIL LINE

When you're ready to get back on track, head east at the fork and brace yourself for the first Mumakil battle. Mumakils have over 250,000 hit points, but at least they're easy to hit. They're immune to many things, but Crippling attacks remain effective (although the Mumakil will always counter with a painful volley of arrows), and Piercing attacks do heavy damage. Since this is going to be a long fight, it pays to use early turns for Leadership, defensive shields, poison and wounding attacks, and skills that lower the Mumakil's stats (Weakening Slash or Flash Arrow, for example). When the Mumakil has a page worth of negative stats on the Player Status screen, begin your offense in earnest.

THE LORD OF THE RINGS

THE THIRD AGE

Q THE WITCH-KING

As difficult as they are, the Mumakils are no more than the Witch-king's opening act. Fortunately, guest character Eowyn will appear to help you battle this super-Nazgul. Her skills aren't fancy, but the damage from the five-hit Edoras Wrath will be crucial against this difficult boss.

By far, the Witch-king's deadliest attack is Devour Flesh, a Spirit attack that does heavy damage to all of your party members and restores the sum of the damage in health for the king. Surprisingly, despite his many immunities, the Witch-king has no defense against Bind Spirit. So the Shadowcraft Silence skill or Eaoeden's Silence Evil will prevent his best attack (as well as his troublesome Fear spells), and force the Witch-king to fight with weaker melee attacks. More than anything else, Silence is the key to this victory, but be aware that no Bind Spirit effect lasts forever, and you'll need to keep an eye on his stats and reuse your skill as soon as it fades.

If you use Steal Item against the Witch-king, Morwen will snag her 3rd Age Rohirric Silver Battle Axe. If you emerge triumphant, your party will earn Morwen's Helm of the Great Hall and Eaoeden's 2nd Age Silver Spear of the Queen of Lorien. You will also complete the Ride to Ruin quest, earning 69,000 experience points and a 50% completion on your Quests

Q FIGHT FOR THE KING

DIFFICULTY: 10 EXP: 74,250

Head north after beating the Witch-king, and you'll find a save point and a chest that holds Morwen's 3rd Age Easterling Iron Broad Axe. Your next two battles will be against Mumakils, but you'll at least get Berethor's 2nd Age Fell Numenorian Battle Helm and Eaoeden's 3rd Age Rohan Infantry Shield for surviving the first. When the road forks again, head east to find a chest with Drops of Healing, or continue north and fight two Mumakils... at the same time! Seek comfort in the fact that those are the last two Mumakils you'll ever see.

King Aragorn will join you for the next several battles, and his new Call the Dead skill will prove to be a devastatingly powerful asset against the trolls and orcs that stand against you. The prize for this victory is a save point, and for the next one (a Ringwraith), you'll win Morwen's 3rd Age Bronze Cuisse of Battle. After the fourth encounter, you'll complete the Fight for the King quest, and find yourself at the game's final save point.

But the fields aren't done with you yet; after fighting three Elite Troll Captains, you'll have to contend with the eight remaining Nazgul, who attack in groups of four. Fortunately, Aragorn will be there to help, along with his undead buddies. The battle is still somewhat difficult, but with Aragorn to rely on, you can focus primarily on defense. Nazgul are difficult to hit, so if you'd like to contribute to the offense, your best bets are spells and can't-miss attacks like Elegost's True

Shot. The final battle against Sauron is just ahead!

THE DARK LORD

Sauron has three abilities, and two of them are devastating. Darkest Fear does enough damage to kill a character in a single hit, and if the victim somehow survives, the strike inflicts the Fear condition. Paralysis of Light is almost worse, putting a Bind Spell effect on all your party members, thereby preventing all the skills that are the cornerstone of boss strategy. Sauron's only other skill drains life, although not in significant amounts.

Use your Spirit Skills while you can, because Paralysis of Light won't let you keep them for long. Berethor's Last Gasp is especially good here, since 1 HP is as good as 5,000 HP when you're facing Darkest Fear. Idrial's Aura of the Valar adds a third line of defense against death. Staying alive is easier than it seems as first, because Sauron has no attacks that damage all your party members. At most, he can do Darkest Fear twice in a row, but Last Gasp or Aura will save you—and if it doesn't, the survivor can use Elf or Valinor Medicine.

Characters will die often in this fight, but it isn't a disaster. In fact, sometimes you'll be happy to see someone die so they'll be free of Paralysis of Light for a turn or two.

Sauron has unbelievable Dexterity, and it is phenomenally difficult to hit him. You could use lots of Dwarven Ale to free your Spirit attackers and beat him that way, but the most reliable path to victory is with guaranteed-accurate attacks like Elegost's Aimed Shot, Morwen's Valorous Cleave, and Idrial's Destined Strike. Elegost should have Frenzy and Morwen should have Double Attack by now, making each capable of dealing 20,000 to 40,000 damage per turn. With those two on offense and Idrial and Berethor protecting them with Aura and Last Gasp (when they can), you can achieve ultimate victory.

BOSS!
SAURON

Sauron is the most evil creature of the last two ages, attempting to destroy or subvert all races with his Shadow Powers.

EVIL MODE

Q GENERAL TIPS

After beating a level (or saving at the end, in the case of Pelennor Fields), you can replay the level as the villains in Evil mode. Doing so will earn you exclusive weapons and items, and can be a strangely cathartic experience, as well.

At times, the battles might seem dauntingly difficult, but there's quite a bit of variation in how they play out. If you find yourself face down in the dirt after your first attempt, rethink your strategy and take another shot at it—Hadhod can't nail you with his Triple Critical every time!

The best general strategy is to focus your early attacks on relatively weak

(but dangerous) heroes. That means Idrial and Morwen, usually. Elegost is also a good target, but he tends to be less dangerous than heavy hitters like Eaoden and Berethor. Tough-as-gristle Hadhod is

EREGION

Eregion may be the hardest area of Evil mode, which sort of makes sense, as it was the easiest area for the Fellowship. There are four rounds here, culminating in a bonus Nazgul battle that lets Sauron's servants strike back. The first is probably the hardest since your Orcs are pretty fragile.

But if you can finish Idrial and Elegost, you'll be safe; Berethor has no way of reaching your archer!

EREGION PRIZES

- CRACKED ELFSTONE OF HEALTH ENHANCEMENT
- CRACKED ELFSTONE OF ACTION ENHANCEMENT
- CRACKED ELFSTONE OF ARMOR ENHANCEMENT

WESTERN MORIA

There are only two battles in this area: the second Watcher in the Water fight and the Goblins at Balin's Tomb. The Goblins may have a difficult time with this one if the Fellowship can focus on taking them out, but the Watcher should be in for an solid win, so it won't take long to get back to the second fight if you do lose.

WESTERN MORIA PRIZES

- BERETHOR'S 3RD AGE MORDOR ORC BATTLE SHIELD
- CRACKED ELFSTONE OF SHADOW PROTECTION

EASTERN MORIA

If you focus on defeating the weakest characters (Idrial or Elegost), the advantage should be yours in the two Troll fights that are the first and third battles in this area. The Goblins in between have a harder battle on their hands, but if you can keep the Shadow

Chieftain alive, his healing skills will win the day.

Getting to play the Balrog in the final battle is a lot of fun if you go easy on the Fellowship and experiment with lesser attacks. When you really want to get serious, though, use Pillar of Wrath a few times for some massive damage.

EASTERN MORIA PRIZES

- BERETHOR'S 3RD AGE FOUL BLADE OF MORGUL
- CRACKED ELFSTONE OF SPIRIT ENHANCEMENT

EAST EMNET GULLIE

In the first two fights, using Power of the Pit on your Uruk Captains isn't a bad idea, since they're your best fighters by far. In the first battle, the presence of Berethor (who has no ranged attacks) might give you numerical superiority, and with it a big advantage. In the third and final fight, instead of focusing your attacks on a single target, spread the Stunning Bites around in hopes of preventing as much damage as possible.

EAST EMNET PRIZES

- POLISHED ELFSTONE OF BLUNT DEFENSE
- POLISHED ELFSTONE OF SLASHING DEFENSE
- POLISHED ELFSTONE OF PIERCING DEFENSE

PLAINS OF ROHAN

In the first fight, victory will come if you keep your Shadow Chieftain alive and destroy the Fellowship with Foul Sleep. On the bridge fight, focus your attacks on Elegost, and hopefully your archers will be able to finish off the others long after your front line is gone. You shouldn't need much help to win as Grima Wormtongue, but the Sharku fight is a lot tougher. You'll just have to hope they leave your minions alive so you can slowly whittle them down with a variety of persistent attacks.

EAODEN'S 3RD AGE IRON GOBLIN SPEAR OF MORIA
POLISHED ELFSTONE OF ACTION ENHANCEMENT

HELM'S DEEP

These battles will make you wonder how the bad guys ever lost in the first place! Sure, the Fellowship has you beat in the quality department, but you have a limitless supply of reinforcements to throw at them. With lots of staggering and silencing effects to play with, even Gimli and Legolas don't have much of a chance. There are only two rounds to this stage, so—sadly—Aragorn is able to escape your clutches.

- HELM'S DEEP PRIZES
POLISHED ELFSTONE OF ARMOR ENHANCEMENT
BERETHOR'S NUMENORIAN DARK BATTLE PLATE
VAMBRACES

OSGILIATH

Gothmog's Barad-dur Curse is pretty strong in the first battle, but Rage of Sauron isn't as effective. Focus instead on killing the softer targets before they can eliminate your minions. Faramir is tougher than he looks, and should be the last to go. After a vicious sewer Troll battle, you'll play the Witch-king against

Idrial and Berethor. Berethor tends to be immune to Fear, so cast it on Idrial and, just this once, take out Berethor

- OSGILIATH PRIZES
POLISHED ELFSTONE OF SHADOW PROTECTION
BERETHOR'S GONDORIAN STEEL WARRIOR FAULD

MINAS TIRITH

Here, you get to experience a surrounding battle from the outside! You can't focus your attacks on one target, but between Thunder Hammer and Stunning Blades, do you really need to? After another Troll fight, you'll get to control a group of Easterlings, and enjoy being on the right side of the Disturbing Sleep skill. The matchup of the Witch-king vs. Gandalf looks like it might be the only one to pose a real challenge, until you realize that Fear can take out anyone but Berethor—even Gandalf! If Fear fails you, Consume Life won't; against four characters, it's fantastic.

- MINAS TIRITH PRIZES
HADHOD'S 2ND AGE MITHRIL DWARVEN WAR HAMMER
EAODEN'S 2ND AGE GOLDEN GLAIVE OF EREGION
EAODEN'S 2ND AGE STEEL GLAIVE OF THE HIGH-KING
BERETHOR'S NUMENORIAN DARK BATTLE PLATE FAULD
MORWEN'S 2ND AGE EASTERLING STEEL PIERCING AXE
BERETHOR'S NUMENORIAN WOOL SHADOW CLOAK

PELENNOR FIELDS

The Mumakil fight is a tough one, but your massive HP total should give you enough time to wipe out your foes' AP with a few swings of Sweeping Tusks. As long as you can prevent the Fellowship from doing anything more than standard attacks, you stand a chance. The Witch-king fight should be much easier; any damage they do to you can be recouped with Devour Flesh. Finally, there's Sauron. Opening with Paralysis of Light and picking the heroes off one-by-one with Darkest Fear is extremely effective, and will ensure Sauron's reign of darkness for ages to come.

Q TOP 10 TIPS FROM THE GAME DEVELOPERS!

You might think the people who make the game know a thing or two about playing it. If so, you're right! We've assembled the following list of gameplay tips straight from the designers.

1. Watch the HP of each character so you don't end up in battles with a weak party, especially since enemies often strike first, before you have time to heal injured members.
- 2.. Spend your stat points immediately every time you level up, as this often enhances HP and AP.
3. Every AP-associated action builds Skill Points, so deliberately use your skills to gain SP every chance you get.
4. Use Berethor's Leadership-enhancing skills every chance you can, especially at the start of difficult combats. It works wonders on all your party.
5. Try to bring every character into each battle, and have them perform one effective action. This ensures each character in your party receives maximum XP for the battle.
6. Pay attention to your skill tree and decide which skills will benefit you best. You do not have to always invest your Skill Points in the default selections.
7. Use the camera controls to look around in every environment. Some chests are hidden and won't appear until you peek around some obstruction.
8. Play Evil mode while playing through the game, as it will unlock some special weapons that cannot be found during normal play.
9. Use the Elfstone of Nimble Crafting to develop Crafting skills, and be sure to share it with multiple members of your party, always crafting extra items during easy encounters.
10. Travel back through the first two episodes with the last few characters who join your party before you move on to Episode 3. There are special items to be obtained (or stolen!) if you do this.
